Twelfth Census of the United States.

CENSUS BULLETIN.

No. 48. WASHINGTON, D. C. February 1, 1901.

POPULATION OF TENNESSEE BY COUNTIES AND MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS.

This bulletin, prepared under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM C. HUNT, chief statistician for population, gives the aggregate population of Tennessee by counties and minor civil divisions, according to the official count of the returns of the Twelfth Census, taken as of June 1, 1900.

Tennessee was admitted as a state June 1, 1796. Table 1 shows the population of Tennessee at each census from 1790 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF TENNESSEE: 1790 TO 1900.

1800	105,602	69,911	195.9
1790	35,691	.....	.....

The population of the state in 1900 is 2,020,616 as against 1,767,518 in 1890, representing an increase since 1890 of 253,098, or 14.3 per cent. This rate of increase is substantially the same as that for the decade immediately preceding, but both are materially less than that for the ten years from 1870 to 1880, which was 22.6 per cent, the highest rate of increase since 1830. The development in population has been by rather small percentages of gain since 1830, but the increase has been continuous and without marked fluctuations except for the decade above mentioned.

The population of Tennessee in 1900 is more than fifty-six times as large as that given for 1790.

The total land surface of Tennessee is, approximately, 41,750 square miles, the average number of persons to the square mile at the censuses of 1890 and 1900 being as follows: 1890, 42.3; 1900, 48.4.

Table 2 shows the population of Tennessee by counties at each census from 1790 to 1900, inclusive, while table 3, which immediately follows, shows, for each county, the increase (or decrease) by number and per cent during the ten years from 1890 to 1900.

[1] Decrease.

The only territorial changes which have been made in the counties of Tennessee since 1890 are that parts of Hickman and Wayne were annexed to Lewis in 1897.

Of the 96 counties in the state all but 8 have increased in population during the decade, the counties showing the largest percentages of increase being Lewis, 74.4 per cent; Cumberland, 54.6 per cent; Lake, 38.9 per cent; Claiborne, 37.0 per cent; Dickson, 36.6 per cent; Shelby, 36.2 per cent; and Polk, 35.8 per cent.

The 8 counties showing a decrease in population are Bedford, Cannon, Giles, Lincoln, Marshall, Moore, Rutherford, and Wilson.

Table 4 shows the population of Tennessee by minor civil divisions, so far as it was separately returned at the censuses of 1890 and 1900.

Of the above named 104 incorporated places there are 29 which have a population in 1900 of more than 2,000, and of these 21 have less than 5,000; 3 have more than 5,000 but less than 10,000; 1 has more than 10,000 but less than 25,000; and 4 have more than 25,000, namely, Memphis, with 102,320; Nashville, with 80,865; Knoxville, with 32,637; and Chattanooga, with 30,154 inhabitants.

For the 4 cities which have a population in 1900 of more than 25,000, a summary is presented in table 6, showing the population of each from the first year in which it was separately stated in the census report to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase (or decrease) by number and per cent during each of the ten-year periods.

[1] Decrease.

[2] Not separately returned.

According to this summary the population of Memphis, beginning with 8,841 in 1850, increased to 22,623 in 1860, or 155.9 per cent. In the decade from 1870 to 1880 the city suffered a loss in population of 6,634, or 16.5 per cent, but with that exception there has been a large percentage of gain at each census, and the population in 1900 is more than eleven times that of 1850. Knoxville, which had a population of 2,076 in 1850, when it first appeared in the census report, increased but slightly until the decade between 1880 and 1890, when there was a gain of 132.5 per cent. During the last ten years the city has again had a noticeable increase. Nashville and Chattanooga show small percentages of gain for the last decade, but received large accessions to their population in the decade from 1880 to 1890.

CENSUS BULLETIN.

No. 49. WASHINGTON, D. C. February 4, 1901.

POPULATION OF TEXAS BY COUNTIES AND MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS.

This bulletin, prepared under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM C. HUNT, chief statistician for population, gives the aggregate population of Texas by counties and minor civil divisions, according to the official count of the returns of the Twelfth Census, taken as of June 1, 1900.

Texas was admitted as a state December 29, 1845. Table 1 shows the population of Texas at each census from 1850 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF TEXAS: 1850 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	Population.	INCREASE.
		Number.	Per cent.
1900	3,048,710	813,187	36.4
1890	2,235,523	643,774	40.4
1880	1,591,749	773,170	94.5
1870	818,579	214,364	35.5
1860	604,215	391,623	184.2
1850	212,592	.....	.....

The population of the state in 1900 is 3,048,710 as compared with a population in 1890 of 2,235,523, showing an increase during the last ten years of 813,187, or 36.4 per cent. In 1850, nearly five years after Texas was admitted as a state, its population was 212,592; in 1860 it had increased to 604,215, or 184.2 per cent. In the decade following, the increase was only 35.5 per cent, but in the next ten years, from 1870 to 1880, the population nearly doubled, and at each succeeding census the numerical gain has been large.

The population of Texas in 1900 is more than fourteen times as large as that given for 1850, the first census in which the population of the state appears.

The total land surface of Texas is, approximately, 262,290 square miles, the average number of persons to the square mile at the censuses of 1890 and 1900 being as follows: 1890, 8.5; 1900, 11.6.

Table 2 shows the population of Texas by counties at each census from 1850 to 1900, inclusive, while table 3, which immediately follows, shows, for each county, the increase (or decrease) by number and per cent during the ten years from 1890 to 1900.

[1] Decrease.

The following territorial changes in the counties of Texas have been made since 1890: Foard organized from parts of Hardeman and Knox in 1891; Sterling organized from part of Tom Green in 1891; Buchel and Foley annexed to Brewster in 1897; and Encinal annexed to Webb in 1899.

Of the 243 counties in the state all but 14 have increased in population during the decade. The largest percentages of increase occur in the sparsely settled counties, some of which have acquired nearly all the population they now have during the last ten years, and, in such cases, the percentages of gain lose significance. Many of the more thickly populated counties show large numerical gains, 23 of these having increased more than 10,000 each.

The 14 counties which show a decrease in population are Aransas, Burnet, Gaines, Hardeman, Irion, Jeff Davis, Kinney, Lynn, McMullen, Marion, Upton, Wheeler, Wilbarger, and Zavalla.

Table 4 shows the population of Texas by minor civil divisions, so far as it was separately returned at the censuses of 1890 and 1900.

According to this summary the population of San Antonio, the largest city in the state, beginning with 3,488 in 1850, increased to 8,235 in 1860, or 136.1 per cent. For each of the four succeeding decades there has been more than a normal increase, and the present population is 53,321, or more than fifteen times what it was in 1850. The population of Houston, the second city in size, is 44,633 in 1900 as against 27,557 in 1890, representing an increase of 17,076, or 62.0 per cent, the largest rate of increase attained by any of the above named cities during the last decade. Galveston had a population in 1850 of 4,177, which increased with each decade to 37,789 in 1900, but since the census was taken the city has been partially destroyed by wind and flood. Both Dallas and Fort Worth appeared first in the census reports of 1880, the former with 10,358 inhabitants and the latter with 6,663. During the ten years from 1880 to 1890 both increased by very large percentages, but, for the last decade, by smaller percentages than any other of the cities named. The present population of each is somewhat more than four times as large as that given for 1880.

CENSUS BULLETIN.

No. 50. WASHINGTON, D. C. February 4, 1901.

POPULATION OF UTAH BY COUNTIES AND MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS.

This bulletin, prepared under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM C. HUNT, chief statistician for population, gives the aggregate population of Utah by counties and minor civil divisions, according to the official count of the returns of the Twelfth Census, taken as of June 1, 1900.

Utah was organized as a territory September 9, 1850, and admitted as a state January 4, 1896. Table 1 shows the population of Utah at each census from 1850 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF UTAH: 1850 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	Population.	INCREASE.
		Number.	Per cent.
1900	276,749	68,844	33.1
1890	207,905	63,942	44.4
1880	143,963	57,177	65.9
1870	86,786	46,513	115.5
1860	40,273	28,893	253.9
1850	11,380	----------	----------

The population of the state in 1900 is 276,749 as compared with a population in 1890 of 207,905, representing an increase since 1890 of 68,844, or 33.1 per cent. A small portion of this increase is due to the fact that there were 2,848 Indians and 26 other persons, or a total of 2,874 persons, on Indian reservations, etc., in Utah, who were specially enumerated in 1890 under the provisions of the census act, but were not included in the general population of the state at that census. In 1850 the population of the territory which afterwards became the state was 11,380, and during the ten years from 1850 to 1860 it increased to 40,273, or 253.9 per cent. During the decade from 1860 to 1870 the population increased at the rate of 115.5 per cent, and the growth of the state has been by increasing numbers for each of the three succeeding decades.

The population of Utah in 1900 is more than twenty-four times as large as that given for 1850, the year when Utah was organized as a territory.

The total land surface of Utah is, approximately, 82,190 square miles, the average number of persons to the square mile at the censuses of 1890 and 1900 being as follows: 1890, 2.5; 1900, 3.4.

Table 2 shows the population of Utah by counties at each census from 1850 to 1900, inclusive, while table 3, which immediately follows, shows, for each county, the increase (or decrease) by number and per cent during the ten years from 1890 to 1900.

[1] Decrease.

The following territorial changes in the counties of Utah have been made since 1890: Wayne organized from part of Piute in 1892; Carbon organized from part of Emery in 1894; part of Kane annexed to Garfield; and part of Sanpete annexed to Utah.

Of the 27 counties in the state all but 2 have increased in population during the decade, the largest percentages of increase being for San Juan, 180.3 per cent; Uinta, 133.8 per cent; Grand, 112.4 per cent; Tooele, 98.9 per cent; Juab, 80.6 per cent; Millard, 40.8 per cent; Garfield, 38.4 per cent; Utah, 36.6 per cent; Sevier, 36.3 per cent; and Salt Lake, 33.0 per cent.

The 2 counties showing a decrease in population are Emery and Piute, but this decrease is due wholly to the fact that parts of these counties were taken to form other counties.

Table 4 shows the population of Utah by minor civil divisions, so far as it was separately returned at the censuses of 1890 and 1900.

CENSUS BULLETIN.

No. 51. WASHINGTON, D. C. February 6, 1901.

POPULATION OF VIRGINIA BY COUNTIES AND MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS.

This bulletin, prepared under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM C. HUNT, chief statistician for population, gives the aggregate population of Virginia by counties and minor civil divisions, according to the official count of the returns of the Twelfth Census, taken as of June 1, 1900.

Virginia was one of the original thirteen states. Table 1 shows the population of Virginia at each census from 1790 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase (or decrease) by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF VIRGINIA: 1790 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	Population.	INCREASE.
		Number.	Per cent.
1900	1,854,184	198,204	12.0
1890	1,655,980	143,415	9.5
1880	1,512,565	287,402	23.5
1870	1,225,163	[1]371,155	[1]23.3
1860	1,596,318	174,657	12.3
1850	1,421,661	181,864	14.7
1840	1,239,797	28,392	2.3
1830	1,211,405	146,289	13.7
1820	1,065,116	90,516	9.3
1810	974,600	94,400	10.7
1800	880,200	132,590	17.7
1790	747,610	.....	.....

[1] Decrease; due to loss of territory, West Virginia having been set off from Virginia December 31, 1862.

The population of the state in 1900 is 1,854,184 as against 1,655,980 in 1890, representing an increase since 1890 of 198,204, or 12.0 per cent. This rate of increase is greater than that for the decade immediately preceding when it was 9.5 per cent, though not so large as that for the ten years from 1870 to 1880, when it was 23.5 per cent, the highest rate of increase shown at any census. The original state of Virginia, from which the states of Virginia and West Virginia were subsequently formed, had a population of 747,610 in 1790, and this was increased by 132,590, or 17.7 per cent during the ensuing ten years. At no subsequent census, save that of 1880, has this rate been equaled, while that of 1840 showed a gain of only 2.3 per cent over the population of 1830. During the decade from 1860 to 1870 the state of West Virginia was organized, which caused a decrease to appear in the population of Virginia for that decade of 371,155, or 23.3 per cent, but the loss in population from this cause was largely regained during the next ten years.

The total land surface of Virginia is, approximately, 40,125 square miles, the average number of persons to the square mile at the censuses of 1890 and 1900 being as follows: 1890, 41.3; 1900, 46.2.

Table 2 shows the population of Virginia by counties at each census from 1790 to 1900, inclusive, while table 3, which immediately follows, shows, for each county, the increase (or decrease) by number and per cent during the ten years from 1890 to 1900.

[1] Decrease.

The following territorial changes in the counties of Virginia have been made since 1890: Part of Norfolk annexed to Portsmouth city; part of Pittsylvania annexed to Danville city; and part of Roanoke annexed to Roanoke city.

Of the 100 counties in the state 66 have increased in population during the decade, those showing the largest percentage of increase being Wise, 110.3 per cent; Alleghany, 75.9 per cent; Buchanan, 65.2 per cent; Dickenson, 52.6 per cent; Northampton, 33.5 per cent; and Smyth, 28.2 per cent.

The counties that have decreased in population during the decade number 34, those showing the largest percentage of decrease being Henrico, 70.9 per cent; Alexandria, 65.4 per cent; Roanoke, 47.4 per cent; Campbell, 43.4 per cent; Spottsylvania, 35.1 per cent; James City, 34.6 per cent; Norfolk, 34.1 per cent; Chesterfield, 28.3 per cent; Warwick, 26.5 per cent; and Frederick, 26.0 per cent. In all except two of these cases, however, the decrease is due wholly to the fact that the cities of the state are now independent of the counties in which they are situated geographically, whereas in 1890 the population of these cities, with the exception of Petersburg, was included as a part of the population of the several counties.

The counties showing a decrease in population due to causes other than that above referred to, are Amelia, Bedford, Charles City, Clarke, Cumberland, Essex, Fluvanna, Goochland, James City, King and Queen, King William, Loudoun, Louisa, Madison, New Kent, Orange, Prince George, Richmond, Rockbridge, Spottsylvania, and York.

Table 4 shows the population of Virginia by minor civil divisions, so far as it was separately returned at the censuses of 1890 and 1900.

Of the 156 incorporated places in Virginia there are 34 that have a population in 1900 of more than 2,000, and of these 20 have less than 5,000; 5 have more than 5,000 but less than 10,000; 5 have more than 10,000 but less than 20,000; and 4 have more than 20,000, namely, Richmond, with 85,050; Norfolk, with 46,624; Petersburg, with 21,810; and Roanoke, with 21,495 inhabitants.

Richmond and Norfolk are the only cities which have a population in 1900 of more than 25,000, and for these cities a summary is presented in table 6, showing the population of each from the first year in which it is separately stated in the census report, to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each of the ten-year periods.

[1] Not separately returned.

According to this summary, the population of Richmond is 85,050 in 1900 as compared with a population of 3,761 in 1790. Since then it has increased with a marked degree of uniformity through each decade except the last. Norfolk has made its greatest gains in population during the last two decades, in the former of which it received accessions to the number of 12,905, or 58.7 per cent, and in the latter, 11,753, or 33.7 per cent. Its present population is 46,624, or nearly seven times what it was one hundred years ago.

CENSUS BULLETIN.

No. 52. WASHINGTON, D. C. February 6, 1901.

POPULATION OF WASHINGTON BY COUNTIES AND MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS.

This bulletin, prepared under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM C. HUNT, chief statistician for population, gives the aggregate population of Washington by counties and minor civil divisions, according to the official count of the returns of the Twelfth Census, taken as of June 1, 1900.

Washington was organized as a territory March 2, 1853, and admitted as a state November 11, 1889. Table 1 shows the population of Washington at each census from 1860 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF WASHINGTON: 1860 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	Population.	INCREASE.
		Number.	Per cent.
1900	518,103	168,713	48.3
1890	349,390	274,274	365.1
1880	75,116	51,161	213.6
1870	23,955	12,361	106.6
1860	11,594	----------	----------

The population of the state in 1900 is 518,103 as compared with a population in 1890 of 349,390, representing an increase during the decade of 168,713, or 48.3 per cent. A small part of this increase is due to the fact that there were 7,526 Indians and 316 other persons, or a total of 7,842 persons, on Indian reservations, etc., in Washington, who were specially enumerated in 1890 under the provisions of the census act, but were not included in the general population of the state at that census. The rate of increase in the population of Washington during the last decade is in marked contrast with that of all preceding decades, and especially as compared with that of the ten years from 1880 to 1890, during which period the population of the state increased 365.1 per cent.

The population of this state in 1900 is nearly forty-five times as large as the population given for 1860, the first year in which its population is given in the census report.

The total land surface of Washington in 1900 is, approximately, 66,880 square miles, the average number of persons to the square mile at the censuses of 1890 and 1900 being as follows: 1890, 5.2; 1900, 7.7.

Table 2 shows the population of Washington by counties at each census from 1860 to 1900, inclusive, while table 3, which immediately follows, shows, for each county, the increase (or decrease) by number and per cent during the ten years from 1890 to 1900.

Of the 36 counties in the state all but 2 show an increase in population since 1890, and in some of them the percentages of increase are very large, namely, Okanogan, 219.6 per cent; Yakima, 204.0 per cent; Snohomish, 181.3 per cent; Stevens, 142.9 per cent; Adams, 130.7 per cent; Skamania, 118.1 per cent; Asotin, 113.0 per cent; and Clallam, 102.2 per cent.

The counties showing a decrease in population are Franklin and Jefferson.

Table 4 shows the population of Washington by minor civil divisions, so far as it was separately returned at the censuses of 1890 and 1900.

Of the above named 90 incorporated places there are 20 that have a population in 1900 of more than 2,000, and of these only 6 have a population of more than 5,000, namely, Seattle, with 80,671; Tacoma, with 37,714; Spokane, with 36,848; Wallawalla, with 10,049; Everett, with 7,838; and New Whatcom, with 6,834 inhabitants.

Seattle, Spokane, and Tacoma are the only cities in Washington that have a population in 1900 of more than 25,000, and for these three cities a summary is presented in table 6, showing their population from 1870 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 6.—POPULATION OF SEATTLE, SPOKANE, AND TACOMA: 1870 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	SEATTLE.			SPOKANE.			TACOMA.
	Population.	Increase.		Population.	Increase.		Population.	Increase.
		Number.	Per cent.		Number.	Per cent.		Number.	Per cent.
1900	80,671	37,834	88.3	36,848	16,926	85.0	37,714	1,708	4.7

1870	1,107						73

As shown by the foregoing summary, these cities have all developed rapidly from very small and recent beginnings, acquiring the greater part of their present population during the decade from 1880 to 1890. In those ten years the population of Seattle increased from 3,533 to 42,837, or 1,112.5 per cent; that of Tacoma from 1,098 to 36,006, or 3,179.2 per cent; and that of Spokane from 350 to 19,922, or 5,592.0 per cent. During the last decade the rates of increase for Seattle and Spokane, though still large as compared with those of many older cities, are relatively small, and that of Tacoma is insignificant.

CENSUS BULLETIN.

No. 53. WASHINGTON, D. C. February 7, 1901.

POPULATION OF WEST VIRGINIA BY COUNTIES AND MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS.

This bulletin, prepared under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM C. HUNT, chief statistician for population, gives the aggregate population of West Virginia by counties and minor civil divisions, according to the official count of the returns of the Twelfth Census, taken as of June 1, 1900.

West Virginia was set off from Virginia December 31, 1862, and admitted as a state June 19, 1863. Table 1 shows the population of West Virginia at each census from 1870 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF WEST VIRGINIA: 1870 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	Population.	INCREASE.
		Number.	Per cent.
1900	958,800	196,006	25.7
1890	762,794	144,337	23.3
1880	618,457	176,443	39.9
1870	442,014	.....	.....

The population of the state in 1900 is 958,800 as against 762,794 in 1890, representing an increase since 1890 of 196,006, or 25.7 per cent. This rate of increase compares favorably with that for the decade immediately preceding, which was 23.3, but both are considerably less than that for the ten years from 1870 to 1880, which was 39.9 per cent. The first census of West Virginia was taken in 1870, seven years after it was organized as a separate state, and the population at that time was 442,014. Since then it has increased by satisfactory percentages, and is at present more than twice as large as it was in 1870.

The total land surface of West Virginia is, approximately, 24,645 square miles, the average number of persons to the square mile at the censuses of 1890 and 1900 being as follows: 1890, 31.0; 1900, 38.9.

Of the above named 140 incorporated places there are 22 that have a population in 1900 of more than 2,000; of these 8 have more than 5,000, namely, Wheeling, with 38,878; Huntington, with 11,923; Parkersburg, with 11,703; Charleston, with 11,099; Martinsburg, with 7,564; Fairmont, with 5,655; Grafton, with 5,650; and Moundsville, with 5,362 inhabitants.

Wheeling is the only city which has a population in 1900 of more than 25,000, and a summary is presented in table 6, showing its population from 1810 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 6.—POPULATION OF WHEELING: 1810 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	Population.	INCREASE.
		Number.	Per cent.
1900	38,878	4,356	12.6
1890	34,522	3,785	12.3
1880	30,737	11,457	59.4
1870	19,280	5,197	36.9

1840	7,885	2,664	51.0
1830	5,221	3,654	233.2
1820	1,567	653	71.4
1810	914	.....	.....

According to the foregoing summary the population of Wheeling, beginning with 914 in 1810, increased by a large percentage during each decennial period until that from 1880 to 1890, its greatest growth having been attained between 1870 and 1880, when the population was augmented by 11,457, or 59.4 per cent. At the last two censuses the percentages of increase have declined to 12.3 and 12.6, respectively, but the present population of the city is double that of 1870 and more than forty-two times that of 1810.

CENSUS BULLETIN.

No. 54. WASHINGTON, D. C. February 7, 1901.

POPULATION OF WISCONSIN BY COUNTIES AND MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS.

This bulletin, prepared under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM C. HUNT, chief statistician for population, gives the aggregate population of Wisconsin by counties and minor civil divisions, according to the official count of the returns of the Twelfth Census, taken as of June 1, 1900.

Wisconsin was organized as a territory July 3, 1836, and admitted as a state May 29, 1848. Table 1 shows the population of Wisconsin at each census from 1840 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF WISCONSIN: 1840 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	Population.	INCREASE.
		Number.	Per cent.
1900	2,069,042	382,162	22.7
1890	1,686,880	371,383	28.2
1880	1,315,497	260,827	24.7
1870	1,054,670	278,789	35.9
1860	775,881	470,490	154.1
1850	305,391	274,446	886.9
1840	30,945	.....	.....

The population of the state in 1900 is 2,069,042 as against 1,686,880 in 1890, representing an increase since 1890 of 382,162, or 22.7 per cent. A small portion of this increase is due to the fact that there were 6,095 Indians and 355 other persons, or a total of 6,450 persons, on Indian reservations, etc., in Wisconsin, who were specially enumerated in 1890 under the provisions of the census act, but were not included in the general population of the state at that census. The population of the territory in 1840 was 30,945, and during the ten years from 1840 to 1850 it increased to 305,391, or 886.9 per cent. During the next decade the population increased to 775,881, or 154.1 per cent. Since then the increase has been by comparatively small percentages, though the growth of the state has been constant and by substantially uniform gains for a series of decades.

The total land surface of Wisconsin is, approximately, 54,450 square miles, the average number of persons to the square mile at the censuses of 1890 and 1900 being as follows: 1890, 31.0; 1900, 38.0.

Table 2 shows the population of Wisconsin by counties at each census from 1840 to 1900, inclusive, while table 3, which immediately follows, shows, for each county, the increase (or decrease) by number and per cent during the ten years from 1890 to 1900.

Oshkosh and Racine have made satisfactory progress during the last decade, but La Crosse has gained only 15.2 per cent in population. Superior, which first appears in the census report of 1890, with 11,983 inhabitants, has since then acquired an additional population of 19,108, representing an increase of 159.5 per cent.

Twelfth Census of the United States.

CENSUS BULLETIN.

No. 55. WASHINGTON, D. C. February 8, 1901.

POPULATION OF WYOMING BY COUNTIES AND MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS.

This bulletin, prepared under the direction of Mr. WILLIAM C. HUNT, chief statistician for population, gives the aggregate population of Wyoming by counties and minor civil divisions, according to the official count of the returns of the Twelfth Census, taken as of June 1, 1900.

Wyoming was organized as a territory July 25, 1868, and admitted as a state July 10, 1890. Table 1 shows the population of Wyoming at each census from 1870 to 1900, inclusive, together with the increase by number and per cent during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF WYOMING: 1870 TO 1900.

CENSUS YEARS.	Population.	INCREASE.
		Number.	Per cent.
1900	92,531	31,826	52.4
1890	60,705	39,916	192.0
1880	20,789	11,671	128.0
1870	9,118	----------	----------

The population of the state in 1900 is 92,531 as against 60,705 in 1890, representing an increase since 1890 of 31,826, or 52.4 per cent. A small portion of this increase is due to the fact that there were 1,801 Indians and 49 other persons, or a total of 1,850 persons, on Indian reservations, etc., in Wyoming, who were specially enumerated in 1890 under the provisions of the census act, but were not included in the general population of the state at that census. The population of the territory of Wyoming in 1870 was 9,118 and it increased to 20,789 in 1880. During the next ten years the increase was 39,916, or 192.0 per cent, giving a total population of 60,705 in 1890, when the territory was admitted as a state. During the first decade as a state it has gained 31,826 inhabitants, that is to say, its population has increased more than fifty per cent.

The population of Wyoming in 1900 is more than ten times as large as that given for 1870, the first census in which the population of the territory appears.

The total land surface of Wyoming is, approximately, 97,575 square miles, the average number of persons to the square mile at the censuses of 1890 and 1900 being as follows: 1890, 0.6; 1900, 0.9.

Table 2 shows the population of Wyoming by counties at each census from 1870 to 1900, inclusive, while table 3, which immediately follows, shows, for each county, the increase (or decrease) by number and per cent during the ten years from 1890 to 1900.
