

MINNESOTA.

CHAPTER 1.—NUMBER OF INHABITANTS.

Introduction.—This chapter gives the population of Minnesota, by counties and minor civil divisions, as enumerated at the Thirteenth Census, taken as of April 15, 1910, with comparative statements of population where possible, and a statement and discussion for the state as a whole of the population living in urban and in rural territory. The statistics are given in detail in two general tables.

Table 1 (p. 964) shows the population of Minnesota, distributed according to counties and minor civil divisions, at the last three Federal censuses, namely, those of 1910, 1900, and 1890. The arrangement of counties and of the primary divisions in each county, except the few that are numbered, is alphabetical. The figures for secondary divisions are printed in italics. The changes in boundaries, name, or form of organization that have taken place since 1900 are indicated in the footnotes to the table. For changes between 1890 and 1900 reference must be made to the census report of 1900.

It may be noticed that the county totals as given in Table 1 for 1900 and 1890 sometimes exceed the aggregate population of the minor civil divisions as shown in the table. This is due in part to the fact that territorial changes have been made in the minor civil divisions of certain counties since 1890, which make it impossible to give in every case the population in 1900 and in 1890 of divisions returned in 1910. In other cases certain divisions returned separately at one census were returned in combination with other divisions at another census, while other divisions returned independently at one census were returned as secondary divisions at another census. Six Indian reservations and parts of two others, all returned independently in 1900, have been opened to settlement, their population in 1910 being included in divisions of which they have been made a part since 1900, or returned by divisions not recognized in 1900. For 10 counties no comparable figures for 1890 can be given by minor civil divisions. Four of these have been organized since that date; for three, population was not returned by minor civil divisions in 1890; for two, the information is incomplete; and one has been redistricted since 1890. For four other counties, the only comparable figures that can be given for 1890 are those of certain cities or villages.

Table 2 (p. 985) shows the cities, the incorporated villages, and the one incorporated borough in Minnesota, alphabetically arranged, with their population in 1910, 1900, and 1890.

The population of Minnesota, by counties, at each of the last five Federal censuses, from 1870 to 1910, inclusive; the increase during the last two decades; the density of the total and the rural population at the census of 1910; and the distribution of the population at the last two Federal censuses, according to urban and rural districts, are given in Table I of Chapter 2.

The tables and text of the present chapter contain few technical expressions whose meaning is not apparent. The census usage in regard to certain terms is, however, explained below:

Density of population.—The density of population of a state or county is obtained by dividing its total population by the number of square miles in its land area. In calculating the density of rural population, the same divisor is used as it is not practicable to ascertain and deduct the exact area covered by the urban districts, and even if this could be done with accuracy the deduction of this area from the total land area would ordinarily make no appreciable difference in the resulting quotient.

Minor civil divisions.—The counties are divided generally into smaller political units which bear different designations in the different parts of the country, such as towns, townships, election precincts, etc. Of these minor civil divisions those which rank next to the county as geographic areas are termed primary divisions. In many instances, however, these primary divisions contain political units of still smaller area, such as cities, incorporated villages, towns, or boroughs. These smaller political units are referred to as secondary divisions.

HISTORICAL NOTE.—Minnesota is named from the river which crosses the southern part of the state in an easterly direction. The name is of Indian origin and signifies "sky-colored (cloudy or hazy) water."

Explorations in the region now constituting Minnesota were made by the French as early as 1659-60, when Grossilliers and Radisson visited the Mille Lacs region. In 1686 Nicolas Perrot took formal possession of the country in the name of the King of France. Although fur traders had been in the Minnesota region for more than a century, the first permanent settlement appears to have been that made near Fort Snelling in 1826 by Swiss refugees from Lord Selkirk's colony at Pembina, now in North Dakota. The fort itself, at first called Fort St. Anthony, had been established in 1819.

In 1762 the French possessions west of the Mississippi, then known as Louisiana, were ceded to Spain, in 1800 Louisiana was retroceded to France, and in 1803 it was purchased by the United States. The French possessions east of the Mississippi were ceded to England in 1763, and at the close of the Revolution all of the present area of Minnesota lying northeast of the Mississippi became a part of the United States.

The section of the Minnesota country included in the Louisiana Purchase belonged successively to the district of Louisiana, organized in 1804, to Louisiana territory, organized in 1805, and to Missouri territory, organized in 1812. In 1834 it was added to Michigan territory, in 1836 it was made a part of Wisconsin territory, and in 1838 it was included in the territory of Iowa. That part of Minnesota northeast of the Mississippi was embraced within the Northwest Territory from the organization of that territory in 1787 until 1800, when it was made a part of the territory of Indiana. In 1809 it was attached to Illinois territory; in 1819 it was added to the territory of Michigan; and in 1836 it was included in the territory of Wisconsin. Upon the admission of Iowa and Wisconsin as states of the Union, in 1846 and 1848, respectively, the Minnesota country was left without an organized government. In 1849 the territory of Minnesota was formed, with northern, eastern, and southern limits as at present, but bounded on the southwest and west by the Missouri and White Earth Rivers, thus including more than half the area of the present states of North and South Dakota. In May, 1858, Minnesota, with boundaries as at present, became a state of the Union.

Urban and rural population defined.—The Census Bureau, for purposes of discussion, has defined urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside of such incorporated places. The comparisons of the urban and rural population in 1910 with that at earlier enumerations may be made either with respect to the varying proportions of the two classes at successive enumerations or with respect to the increase between enumerations. In order to contrast the proportion of the total population living in urban or rural territory at the census of 1910 with the proportion urban or rural at the preceding census, it is necessary to classify the territory according to the conditions as they existed at each census. In this comparison a place having less than 2,500 inhabitants in 1900 and over 2,500 in 1910 is classed with the rural population for 1900 and with the urban for 1910.

On the other hand, in order to present fairly the contrast between urban and rural communities, as regards their rate of growth, it is necessary to consider the changes in population for the same territory which have occurred from one decennial census to another. For this purpose the territory which in 1910 was urban or rural, as the case may be, is taken as the basis, and the population in 1900 for the same territory (so far as separately reported at that census) is presented, even though part of the territory may, on the basis of its population at the earlier census, have then been in a different class. This avoids the disturbing effect on comparisons which would arise from the passage, for example, of communities formerly classed as rural into the urban group. These two distinct forms of comparison are made in Table I of Chapter 2 for the state as a whole and for each county separately for the last two Federal censuses.

TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—The population of Minnesota is 2,075,708. Compared with a population of 1,751,394 in 1900, this represents an increase during the last decade of 324,314, or 18.5 per cent. During the same period the total population of the United States increased 21 per cent. The growth of the state during the last decade, although substantial, was slower than during any previous decade. The following table shows the population of Minnesota at each Federal census from 1850 to 1910, inclusive, together with the increase and per cent of increase during each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole.

Minnesota was organized as a territory in 1849 and appears in the Federal census reports for the first time in 1850. During the decade 1850-1860 its population increased from 6,077 to 172,023, and during the 30 years 1860-1890, the growth continued at a rapid rate. For each succeeding decade during this period the absolute increases were greater, although the percentage increases declined from 155.6 to 67.8. In the decade 1890-1900 the percentage increase dropped to 33.7 and in the following decade to 18.5, the absolute increases as well as the rate showing a decline at the censuses of 1900 and 1910.

The rate of growth for the state has been higher than for the country as a whole during every decade except the last. During the decade 1890-1900 the rate for the state was about one and one-half times that for the United States. In the earlier decades the excess was much greater.

Principal cities.—Minnesota has 81 cities. Minneapolis, the largest, has a population of 301,408, and St. Paul, thesecond city, a population of 214,744. Duluth, with a population of 78,466, is the only other city in the state having over 25,000 inhabitants. There are 5 cities having from 10,000 to 25,000, 14 having from 5,000 to 10,000, 22 having from 2,500 to 5,000, and 37 having less than 2,500 inhabitants. The aggregate population of the 81 cities is 889,763, or 42.9 per cent of the total population of the state.

Table 2 shows the population in 1910 of all the cities of the state with comparative figures, where possible, for 1900 and 1890. The table on page 959 shows the population of the eight cities having in 1910 over 10,000 inhabitants, as reported at each Federal census since their incorporation either as cities or towns, so far as figures are available, together with the increase during each decade.

Of the percentages of increase for these cities during the last decade, that for Virginia, 253.6, is highest and that for St. Cloud, 22.4, lowest, while Stillwater, Wirona, and Mankato show decreases of 17.2, 5.7, and 2.2, respectively.

Minneapolis and St. Paul from the time of their incorporation as towns in 1856 and 1849, respectively, to 1890 each showed a very rapid growth. The rate of increase for Minneapolis did not fall below 250 per cent for any decade between these years. The rates for St.

<sup>2</sup> Excludes in 1880 Duluth village (population 2,645), set apart by act of legislature, Feb. 23, 1877, but which again became part of the city by the act of Mar. 2, 1887.

Paul varied greatly, the lowest one, that for 1860-1870, being 92.6 per cent. During the last 20 years the growth of these two cities, while rapid, was slower than in previous years. The increase in each during the last decade was, however, considerably more rapid than during the decade 1890-1900. During the last 30 years the population of Duluth increased from 838 in 1880 to 78,466 in 1910.

Counties.—Minnesota has 86 counties. The population of these counties ranges from 1,336 in Cook County to 333,480 in Hennepin County.

The following territorial changes have been made in the counties of Minnesota since 1900: Part of Beltrami County was taken in 1903 to form Clearwater County; part of Itasca County was taken in 1906 to form Koochiching County; part of Norman County was taken in 1906 to form Mahnomen County; and part of Red Lake County was taken in 1910 to form Pennington County. The White Earth Indian Reservation, which has been opened to settlement since 1900, was returned in 1910 as part of Becker, Clearwater, and Mahnomen Counties.

Owing to the distribution of White Earth Indian Reservation and to the organization since 1900 of 4 new counties from parts of other counties, as shown above, the comparison of increase or decrease in population is made for only 77 counties, four combinations of counties, and one combination of a county with part of an Indian reservation. The combinations are Pennington County with Red Lake, Koochiching with Itasca, Mahnomen and part of White Earth Indian Reservation with Norman, Clearwater and part of White Earth Indian Reservation with Beltrami, and Becker with part of White Earth Indian Reservation. In order to determine the actual rate of increase for the territory covered by these counties, it is necessary to add the population of each new county to that of the old county from which it was formed. In each of the last three combinations above mentioned, the estimated population in 1900 of that portion of the White Earth Indian Reservation which was taken to form the new county must be considered in obtaining a base upon which to compute the increase in population. Fifty counties and four of the combinations increased in population during the last decade. The rates of increase for the 50 counties ranged from 1.3 per cent in Pope County to 96.9 per cent in St. Louis County, and the absolute increases of the same group of counties ranged from 169 in Pope County to 105,140 in Hennepin County. The combinations of Clearwater County and part of White Earth Indian Reservation with Beltrami, and Koochiching with Itasca, showed increases of 131 and 416.9 per cent, respectively; Pennington with Red Lake and Becker with part of White Earth Indian Reservation increased less rapidly, 30.7 and 18.6 per cent, respectively. Twenty-seven counties and one combination decreased in population during the last decade, the rates of decrease ranging from five-tenths of 1 per cent in Carver County to 9.5 per cent in Faribault County, and the absolute decreases from 89 in Carver County to 2,926 in Blue Earth County. The population of the combination of Mahnomen County and part of White Earth Indian Reservation with Norman County decreased 5, or less than one-tenth of 1 per cent. The aggregate increase of population from 1900 to 1910 in the 50 counties and the four combinations that showed an increase was 350,247; the aggregate decrease of population in the 27 counties and the one combination that showed a decrease was 25,933. The difference, 324,314, is, of course, the total increase of population in the state.

The maps on page 962 show the increase or decrease in the total and the rural population, respectively, of each county of Minnesota during the last decade. In the counties shown in white the population decreased; for the other counties the different rates of increase are indicated by differences in shading.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 80,858 square miles. The average number of persons to the square mile in 1910 was 25.7; in 1900 and 1890 it was 21.7 and 16.2, respectively. The average number per square mile for the United States as a whole in 1910 was 30.9.

The density of population is given by counties in Table I of Chapter 2 and in the maps on page 963, both for the entire population and for that living in rural territory, excluding in the latter case the population of places of 2,500 inhabitants or more, but not excluding the land area of such places.

St. Louis County, with 6,503 square miles, has the largest area, and Ramsey County, with 161 square miles, has the smallest area. Ramsey County, containing the city of St. Paul, has the highest density of any county, namely, 1,389.3 persons per square mile, while Cook County has the lowest density, namely, 0.9.

Minor civil divisions.—The political divisions into which counties are subdivided are collectively termed "Minor civil divisions." In Minnesota the counties are divided into 2,371 primary divisions, comprising 1,814 townships, 475 villages, 81 cities, and 1 borough. There are also 87 secondary divisions, all of which are villages. These secondary divisions usually form parts of townships, but one village is coextensive with the township in which it is located. In addition to the minor civil divisions above enumerated there are 329 unorganized townships, 73 of which have no population reported, 2 islands, 1 angle, and 4 Indian reservations in the state. These are returned under the counties in which they are wholly or partly located.

Urban and rural population compared.—The following table presents the population of Minnesota at the Federal censuses of 1910, 1900, and 1890, respectively, distributed among cities, villages, and boroughs grouped according to specified limits of population, together with the percentage of the total population contained in each group at each of the censuses named. The classification is based upon the population of each place as it existed at each census.

As shown by the above table, the urban territory of the state in 1910—that is, the cities and incorporated villages of 2,500 inhabitants or more—contained 850,294 inhabitants, or 41 per cent of the total population, while 1,225,414 inhabitants, or 59 per cent, lived in rural territory. The urban territory as it existed in 1900—that is, the cities and incorporated villages then having 2,500 inhabitants or more—contained 598,100 inhabitants, or 34.1 per cent of the total population, while 1,153,294 inhabitants, or 65.9 per cent, lived in rural territory. There has thus been a considerable increase in the proportion of urban population. The proportions urban and rural in 1890 were very nearly the same as in 1900. For the United States as a whole the urban population constituted 46.3 per cent of the total population in 1910 and 40.5 per cent of the total population in 1900.

In 1910 the two cities in the state having over 100,000 inhabitants, Minneapolis and St. Paul, contained about one-fourth, or 24.9 per cent, of the total population of the state, and more than one-half of the urban population. In 1900 and in 1890 the percentages of the population in these two cities were 20.9 and 22.7, respectively. The proportion of the population of the state in the urban places outside of St. Paul and Minneapolis increased from 11.1 per cent in 1890 to 13.3 per cent in 1900 and to 16.1 per cent in 1910; the greater part of the increase being in the two smaller urban groups.

The urban population of the state is contained in 44 cities and 4 villages. Of the total population, 59 per cent is classed as rural, 15.7 per cent being contained in 596 incorporated places of less than 2,500 inhabitants each and 43.3 per cent in unincorporated territory. The 596 places of less than 2,500 inhabitants each have an aggregate population of 326,166. These places comprise 95 having from 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants each, with a combined population of 147,170; 119 having from 500 to 1,000 inhabitants each, with a combined population of 83,747; and 382 having less than 500 inhabitants each, with a combined population of 95,249.

The table on page 960 shows also that in all incorporated places, including those of less than 2,500 inhabitants, there was in 1910 a population of 1,176,460, or 56.7 per cent of the population of the state. The population of all incorporated places, as they existed in 1900, was 861,142, or 49.2 per cent of the population of the state.

Table I of Chapter 2 shows that 25 counties had a larger proportion and 6 counties a smaller proportion of urban population in 1910 than in 1900. Three counties and three combinations which were wholly rural in 1900 were partly urban in 1910, and three counties which were partly urban in 1900 were wholly rural in 1910, while 40 counties and two combinations were wholly rural at both censuses.

In order to compare the rate of growth in urban and rural communities it is necessary in each case, as previously explained, to consider the changes in population which have occurred in the same territory from one decennial census to another. With this end in view places classed as urban or rural according to their population in 1910 are taken as a basis and the aggregate population in 1910 and in 1900 of the same places is then compared. Thus, as shown in the next table, the total population in 1910 of the cities and villages which at that time had 2,500 inhabitants or more was 850,294; in 1900 the total population of these same places (so far as separately reported) was 613,595. It may be noted that the latter figure exceeds the total population in 1900 of the cities and villages which at that time had over 2,500 inhabitants each, 598,100 (see table on p. 960), by 15,495. The difference is the net result of the passage, since 1900, of certain communities from the rural to the urban class and vice versa.

A comparison of the total population in 1910 of cities and villages having a population of not less than 2,500 each with the total population of the same places in 1900, as given in the next table, shows an increase of 38.6 per cent. This represents the rate of growth of urban communities as thus defined. During the same period the rural population, comprising that of the remainder of the state, increased 7.7 per cent. Urban population thus increased more than five times as rapidly as rural. For the United States as a whole urban population increased 34.8 per cent in the last decade and rural population 11.2 per cent. As shown by Table I of Chapter 2, there are 32 counties and one combination in Minnesota in which the population living in rural territory decreased, and 6 counties in which there was a decrease in the urban population during the last decade, Blue Earth, Nicolett, Waseca, and Winona being the only counties that decreased in population in both rural and urban districts.

In the following table the population for the state as a whole is distributed so as to show, for 1910 and 1900, the combined population of the cities having in 1910, 25,000 inhabitants or more, the combined population of cities and villages having in 1910 from 2,500 to 25,000 inhabitants, and the population of the remainder of the state.

CLASS OF PLACES.	POPULATION.		INCREASE: 1900-1910
	1910	1900	Number.	Per cent.
The state.....	2,075,708	1,751,394	324,314	18.5
Urban territory in 1910.....	850,294	613,595	236,699	38.6
Cities of 25,000 inhabitants or more in 1910.....	594,618	418,752	175,866	42.0
Cities and villages of 2,500 to 25,000 inhabitants in 1910.....	255,676	194,843	60,833	31.2
Remainder of the state.....	1,225,414	1,137,799	87,615	7.7

From this table it appears that both groups of urban communities increased in population during the last decade more rapidly than the state as a whole, the rate of increase for cities of over 25,000 inhabitants being more than double, and that for cities and villages of 2,500 to 25,000 inhabitants a little more than one and one-half times the rate for the state as a whole. The population in rural territory, on the other hand, increased not quite one-half as rapidly as that of the state as a whole.

Of the total increase in the population of the state during the decade, namely, 324,314, a little more than one-fourth was in rural territory and more than one-half was in places of over 25,000 inhabitants.

CHAPTER 2:—COMPOSITION AND CHARACTERISTICS OF THE POPULATION.

Introduction.—The first chapter having given the number of inhabitants of Minnesota by counties and minor civil divisions, the decennial increase and the density of population, and the proportions urban and rural, the present chapter deals with the composition and characteristics of the population. The two chapters cover all the principal topics of the population census except occupations and ownership of homes.

Description of the tables.—The greater part of this chapter consists of five general tables, which present statistics of color, nativity, parentage, sex, citizenship, illiteracy, school attendance, and dwellings and families, as follows: Table I for the state and counties; Table II for the three cities of more than 25,000 inhabitants; Table III for cities of 10,000 to 25,000; Table IV for places of 2,500 to 10,000; and Table V for wards of cities of more than 50,000.

A series of summary tables (numbered 1 to 15) reproduces from the general tables the more important state and city totals, and presents also certain additional data relative to state of birth, age, and marital condition.

On account of the wide differences in characteristics among the different classes of the population, the statistics on each subject are shown according to race, and for the whites according to nativity and parentage. Classification according to nativity and parentage is scarcely necessary for the other races, since nearly all negroes and Indians are native born of native parentage, and nearly all Chinese and Japanese either foreign born or of foreign parentage.

The white population is divided into four groups: (1) Native, native parentage—that is, having both parents born in the United States; (2) native, foreign parentage—having both parents born abroad; (3) native, mixed parentage—having one parent native and the other foreign born; (4) foreign born. As the second and third classes do not differ greatly in characteristics, they are combined in some of the tables; in a few cases all three native white classes are combined.

Since marked differences often exist between urban and rural communities with respect to the composition and characteristics of the population, the two classes are distinguished in connection with several of the subjects. Urban population, as defined by the Bureau of the Census, includes that of all incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more, the remainder being classified as rural.

The census inquiry as to school attendance was merely as to whether the person enumerated had attended any kind of school at any time between September 1, 1909, and the date of enumeration, April 15, 1910.

The Census Bureau classifies as illiterate any person 10 years of age or over who is unable to write, regardless of ability to read.

Color and nativity (Table 1).—Of the total population of Minnesota, 575,081, or 27.7 per cent, are native whites of native parentage; 941,136, or 45.4 per cent, are native whites of foreign or mixed parentage; and 543,010, or 26.2 per cent, are foreign-born whites. The corresponding percentages in 1900 were 24.3, 46, and 28.8, respectively, the proportion of native whites of native parentage having increased during the decade. The percentage of Indians is 0.4; of negroes, 0.3. In only 1 of the 86 counties is the percentage of foreign-born whites less than 15; in 56 counties it ranges from 15 to 25; in 22 counties from 25 to 35; and in 7 counties exceeds 35. In 35 counties the proportion of native whites of foreign or mixed parentage exceeds one-half. (See maps on page 1020.)

Of the urban population, 29.2 per cent are native whites of native parentage; of the rural, 26.7 per cent. The corresponding proportions for native whites of foreign or mixed parentage are 41.1 and 48.2 per cent, respectively. The percentage of foreign-born whites is 28.8 in the urban population and 24.3 in the rural. The negro population is almost entirely urban, and the Indian population almost entirely rural.

Sex (Table 2).—In the total population of the state there are 1,108,511 males and 967,197 females, or 114.6 males to 100 females. In 1900 the ratio was 113.9 to 100. Among native whites the ratio is 105.7 to 100 and among foreign-born whites 144. In the urban population there are 112.5 males to 100 females, and in the rural, 116.1.

State of birth (Tables 3 and 4).—Of the total native population—that is, population born in the United States—73.2 per cent were born in Minnesota and 26.8 per cent outside the state; of the native white population, 26.7 per cent were born outside the state; of the native negro, 77.4 per cent; and of the native Indian, 5.7 per cent. Persons born outside the state constitute a much larger proportion of the native population in urban than in rural communities.

Foreign nationalities (Tables 5 and 12).—Of the foreign-born white population of Minnesota, persons born in Sweden represent 22.5 per cent; Germany, 20.2; Norway, 19.4; Canada, 7.5; Austria, 6.8; Finland, 4.9; Russia, 3.2; Denmark, 3; Ireland, 2.9; England, 2.2; all other countries, 7.4. Of the total white stock of foreign origin, which includes persons born abroad and also natives having one or both parents born abroad, Germany contributed 26.7 per cent; Norway, 18.8; Sweden, 18.1; Canada, 7.5; Austria, 5.1; Ireland, 4.9; Finland, 3; Denmark, 2.5; England, 2.5; Russia, 2.

Voting and militia ages (Table 6).—The total number of males 21 years of age and over is 642,669, representing 31 per cent of the population. Of such males, 21.1 per cent are native whites of native parentage, 31.6 per cent native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 46.4 per cent foreign-born whites, 0.5 per cent negroes, and 0.3 per cent Indians. Of the 298,282 foreign-born white males of voting age, 179,187, or 60.1 per cent, are naturalized. Males of militia age—18 to 44—number 491,113.

Age (Tables 7, 8, and 13).—Of the total population, 10.9 per cent are under 5 years of age, 20.9 per cent from 5 to 14 years, inclusive, 20.8 per cent from 15 to 24, 28.6 per cent from 25 to 44, and 18.4 per cent 45 years of age and over. The foreign-born white population comprises comparatively few children, only 3.2 per cent of this class being under 15 years of age, while more than five-sixths (85.3 per cent) are 25 years of age and over. Of the native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, less than one-third (32.5 per cent) are 25 and over, and of the native whites of native parentage approximately the same proportion (34.7 per cent).

The urban population shows a smaller proportion of children than the rural and a larger proportion of persons in the prime of life. Migration to the city explains this at least in part. Of the urban population, 33.8 per cent are from 25 to 44 years of age, inclusive, and of the rural population, 25 per cent.

School attendance (Table 9).—The total number of persons of school age—that is, from 6 to 20 years, inclusive—is 648,775, of whom 443,761, or 68.4 per cent, attended school. In addition to these, 9,463 children under 6 and 9,643 persons 21 and over attended school. For boys from 6 to 20 years, inclusive, the percentage attending school was 68.1; for girls, 68.7. For children from 6 to 14 years, inclusive, the percentage attending school was 88.8. The percentage for children of this age among native whites of native parentage was 88.8; among native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 89.2; among foreign-born whites, 86; among negroes, 90; and among Indians, 77.8. (See Table I.) There is little difference between urban and rural communities as regards the percentage of school attendance for the ages from 6 to 14, but of persons from 15 to 20 years, inclusive, 34.7 per cent in the urban population, as against 39.6 per cent in the rural, were reported as attending school.

Illiteracy (Table 10).—There are 49,336 illiterates in the state, representing 3 per cent of the total population 10 years of age and over, as compared with 4.1 per cent in 1900. The percentage of illiteracy is 7.6 among foreign-born whites, 3.4 among negroes, 0.5 among native whites, and 40.2 among Indians.

For all classes combined, the percentage of illiterates is slightly higher in rural than in urban communities. For each class separately, also, the rural percentage exceeds the urban, the difference being slight except in the case of the negroes and Indians.

For persons from 10 to 20 years of age, inclusive, whose literacy depends largely upon present school facilities and school attendance, the percentage of illiteracy is very slight, only 0.7. (See Table I.)

Marital condition (Tables 11 and 14).—In the population 15 years of age and over 46.8 per cent of the males are single and 35 per cent of the females. The percentage married is 48.3 for males and 56.2 for females; and the percentage widowed 3.8 and 8, respectively. The percentages of those reported as divorced; 0.4 and 0.5, respectively, are believed to be too small, because of the probability that many divorced persons class themselves as single or widowed.

That the percentage single is so much smaller for women than for men is due partly to the excess of males in the total population and partly to the fact that women marry younger. Thus 4.3 per cent of the females from 15 to 19 years of age are married, as compared with 0.2 per cent of the males, and 35.5 per cent of the females from 20 to 24 years of age are married, as compared with 11.3 per cent of the males. In the next age group, 25 to 34 years, the percentages are 71.8 and 48.5, respectively; in the age group 35 to 44 they are 83.7 and 73, and among persons of 45 and over the percentage married is higher among the males. That there is a larger proportion of widows than of widowers may indicate that men more often remarry than women, but, since husbands are generally older than their wives, the marriage relationship is more often broken by death of the husband than by death of the wife.

For the main elements of the population the percentages of married persons among those 15 years of age and over are as follows: Foreign-born whites, 60.4 for males and 71.9 for females; native whites of native parentage, 44.6 and 50.4, respectively; native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 37.2 and 47; negroes, 44.2 and 56.9; and Indians, 56.1 and 62.1.

These percentages by no means indicate the relative tendency of the several classes as regards marriage. To determine that, the comparison should be made by age periods, since the proportion married in any class is determined largely by the proportion who have reached the marrying age. Similarly, the proportion widowed depends largely on the proportion past middle life. The percentage married, for both sexes, is higher in rural than in urban communities.

Dwellings and families.—The total number of dwellings in Minnesota is 380,809, and the total number of families 416,453, there being 109.4 families to each 100 dwellings. (See Table I.) The average number of persons per dwelling is 5.5, and the average number per family, 5.

CHAPTER 1.—NUMBER OF INHABITANTS.

Introduction.—This chapter gives the population of Mississippi, by counties and minor civil divisions, as enumerated at the Thirteenth Census, taken as of April 15, 1910, with comparative statements of population where possible, and a statement and discussion for the state as a whole, of the population living in urban and in rural territory. The statistics are given in detail in two general tables.

Table 1 (p. 1028) shows the population of Mississippi, distributed according to counties and minor civil divisions, at the last three censuses, namely, those of 1910, 1900, and 1890. In this table the counties are arranged alphabetically, while the primary divisions in each county are given in numerical order. The figures for secondary divisions are printed in italics. The changes in boundaries, name, or form of organization that have taken place since 1900 are indicated in the footnotes to the table. For changes between 1890 and 1900 reference must be made to the census report of 1900.

Owing to the territorial changes that have been made in the minor civil divisions of certain counties and to the formation of new counties since 1890, and to the fact that certain divisions returned separately at the last two censuses were not so returned at the census of 1890, comparisons of the population of the minor civil divisions in 1910 with those in 1900 and 1890 are to a large extent impossible. For the same reasons county totals as given in Table 1 for 1900 and 1890 sometimes exceed the aggregate population of the minor civil divisions as shown in the table.

Table 2 (p. 1035) shows the cities and incorporated town and villages in Mississippi, alphabetically arranged, with their population in 1910, 1900, and 1890.

The population of Mississippi, by counties, at each of the last five censuses, from 1870 to 1910, inclusive; the increase during the last two decades; the density of the total and the rural population at the census of 1910; and the distribution of the population at the last two censuses according to urban and rural districts, are given in Table I of Chapter 2.

The tables and text of the present chapter contain few technical expressions whose meaning is not apparent. The census usage in regard to certain terms is, however, explained below:

Density of population.—The density of population of a state or county is obtained by dividing its total population by the number of square miles in its land area. In calculating the density of rural population the same divisor is used as it is not practicable to ascertain and deduct the exact area covered by the urban districts, and even if this could be done with accuracy, the deduction of this area from the total land area would ordinarily make no appreciable difference in the resulting quotient.

Minor civil divisions.—The counties are divided generally into smaller political units which bear different designations in the different parts of the country, such as towns, townships, election precincts, beats, etc. Of these minor civil divisions those which rank next to the county as geographic areas are termed primary divisions. In many instances, however, these primary divisions contain political units of still smaller area, such as cities, incorporated villages, towns, or boroughs. These smaller political units are referred to as secondary divisions.

Urban and rural population defined.—The Census Bureau, for purposes of discussion, has defined urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside of such incorporated places.

The comparisons of the urban and rural population in 1910 with those at earlier enumerations may be made either with respect to the varying proportions of the two classes at successive enumerations or with respect to the increase between enumerations. In order to contrast the proportion of the total population living in urban or rural territory at the census of 1910 with the proportion urban or rural at the preceding census, it is necessary to classify the territory according to the conditions as they existed at each census. In this comparison a place having less than 2,500 inhabitants in 1900 and over 2,500 in 1910 is classed with the rural population for 1900 and with the urban for 1910. On the other hand, in order to

HISTORICAL NOTE.—Mississippi takes its name from the river which borders it on the west. The word is of Indian origin and signifies "great river" or "father of waters."

The earliest recorded exploration within the region now constituting Mississippi was made in 1540-41 by the Spaniard, De Soto, who traversed the northeastern part on his way from Florida to the Mississippi River. In 1673 the French missionaries, Marquette and Joliet, sailed down the Mississippi to the Arkansas, and in 1682 La Salle descended the Mississippi to its mouth. The first settlement within the present limits of the state was made by the French in 1699, at Old Biloxi, across the bay from the present site of Biloxi. This site was abandoned about 1702, and some 10 years later the first permanent settlement was made at Biloxi. The French claims to the Mississippi region were formally made by La Salle, who, on completing his voyage down the river, named the whole Mississippi Valley "Louisiana" in honor of Louis XIV. England also claimed this region by virtue of discoveries along the Atlantic coast, and the territory now comprising Mississippi was included wholly or in part by the Carolina charters of 1663 and 1665 and by the Georgia charter of 1732.

In 1763 all of the French possessions east of the Mississippi, except the Isle of Orleans, were ceded to Great Britain. At the same time Great Britain acquired the Spanish province of Florida, and soon afterwards divided it into east and west Florida, extending the latter westward to the Mississippi and northward to the latitude of the mouth of the Yazoo. At the close of the Revolution the former British possessions east of the Mississippi and north of the thirty-first parallel were ceded to the United States, and at the same time the Floridas were transferred to Spain. The title to the area which had been added to west Florida by Great Britain was, however, in dispute between the United States and Spain until 1795, when the latter country relinquished its claims. Three years later this area, which had been claimed by Georgia, was organized as the territory of Mississippi.

In 1804 Mississippi Territory was extended northward to the southern boundary of Tennessee, thus including lands ceded to the Federal Government by South Carolina and Georgia. The tract south of the thirty-first parallel and between the Perdido River on the east and the Mississippi River on the west, was in dispute between the United States and Spain after the Louisiana Purchase in 1803. During the War of 1812 that portion of this area lying between the Perdido and Pearl Rivers was taken from Spain by the United States and added to Mississippi Territory. Spain did not, however, formally relinquish its claim until the Florida cession of 1819.

In March, 1817, the territory of Alabama was organized from a part of Mississippi territory, leaving the latter with substantially its present boundaries, and in December of the same year Mississippi became a state of the Union.

present fairly the contrast between urban and rural communities, as regards their rate of growth, it is necessary to consider the changes in population for the same territory which have occurred from one decennial census to another. For this purpose the territory which in 1910 was urban or rural, as the case may be, is taken as the basis, and the population in 1900 for the same territory (so far as separately reported at that census) is presented, even though part of the territory may, on the basis of its population at the earlier census, have then been in a different class. This avoids the disturbing effect on comparisons which would arise from the passage, for example, of communities formerly classed as rural into the urban group. These two distinct forms of comparison are made in Table I of Chapter 2 for the state as a whole and for each county separately for the last two censuses.

TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—The population of Mississippi is 1,797,114. Compared with a population of 1,551,270 in 1900, this represents an increase during the last decade of 245,844, or 15.8 per cent. During the same period the total population of the United States increased 21 per cent. The percentage of increase for the state for this decade was somewhat lower than that for the preceding decade, 1890–1900, when the rate was 20.3 per cent.

The following table shows the population of Mississippi at each census from 1800 to 1910, inclusive, together with the increase and per cent of increase during each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole.

Mississippi was organized as a territory in 1798 and appears in the census reports for the first time in 1800. The total population (40,352) reported for 1810 and (8,850) reported for 1800 includes 9,046 and 1,250, respectively, returned for that portion which was taken in 1817 to form the territory of Alabama. The population of the state has increased during the intercensal periods at widely varying rates, but the rates of increase for the decades from 1800 to 1850 were much greater than those for the succeeding decades. In 1850 the population of the state was somewhat more than sixty-eight times as great as in 1800; in 1910 the population of the state was almost three times as great as in 1850.

A comparison of the rates of increase for the state with those for the United States, as given in the preceding table, shows that the rate of increase for the state during every decade from 1800 to 1850 was higher than that for the United States. The greatest difference between the two rates was during the decade 1800–1810, when the rate for the state was nearly ten times that for the country as a whole, while the smallest difference was that shown for the decade 1840–1850, when the rate for the state was more than one and two-thirds times that for the country as a whole. Since 1850 the rate of increase for the state has been lower than that for the country as a whole during every decade, except the decade 1870–1880.

Principal cities.—Mississippi has 44 cities, of which Meridian, the largest, has a population of 23,285, and Jackson, the second city, a population of 21,262. Vicksburg, Natchez, and Hattiesburg, with 20,814, 11,791, and 11,733 inhabitants, respectively, are the only other cities in the state having over 10,000 inhabitants. Of the remaining cities, 10 have from 5,000 to 10,000, 14 have from 2,500 to 5,000, and 15 have from 2,000 to 2,500 inhabitants. The aggregate population of the 44 cities is 239,941, or 13.4 per cent of the total population of the state.

Table 2 shows the population in 1910 of all the cities of the state with comparative figures, where possible, for 1900 and 1890. The table on page 1023 shows the population of the five cities having in 1910 over 10,000 inhabitants, as reported at each census since their incorporation either as cities or towns, so far as figures are available, together with the increase during each decade.

Of the cities included in the table, Hattiesburg shows the highest rate of increase during the last decade, namely, 181 per cent, and Vicksburg the lowest, 40.3 per cent, while Natchez shows a decrease of 3.4 per cent. Jackson shows an increase of 172 per cent, which is more than five times the rate of increase for any other decade.

Counties.—Mississippi has 79 counties. The population of these counties ranges from 6,050 in Greene County to 63,726 in Hinds County.

The following territorial changes have been made in the counties of Mississippi since 1900: Part of Hancock was annexed in 1908 to Pearl River; parts of Pearl River and Marion were taken in 1904 to form Lamar; parts of Covington and Lawrence were taken in 1906 to form Jefferson Davis; part of Perry was taken in 1908 to form Forrest; and parts of Greene and Jackson were taken in 1910 to form George.

Owing to the organization since 1900 of four new counties from parts of other counties, as shown above, the comparison of increase or decrease in population is made for only 68 counties and four combinations of counties. The counties combined in order to determine their actual rate of increase are Perry with Forrest, Greene and Jackson with George, Covington and Lawrence with Jefferson Davis, and Pearl River and Marion with Lamar. Fifty-three counties and the four combinations of counties increased in population during the last decade. The rates of increase for the 53 counties range from 1.5 per cent in Issaquena County to 113.3 per cent in Quitman County, and the absolute increases of the same group of counties range from 160 in Issaquena County to 13,656 in Harrison County. The combinations of counties show rates of increase ranging from 20.6 per cent to 93.5 per cent. Fifteen counties decreased in population during the last decade, the rates of decrease ranging from six-tenths of 1 per cent in Washington County to 16.3 per cent in Claiborne County, and the absolute decreases from 144 in Kemper County to 4,846 in Adams County. The aggregate increase of population from 1900 to 1910 in the 53 counties and the four combinations of counties that showed increases was 271,798; the aggregate decrease of population in the 15 counties that showed decreases was 25,954. The difference, 245,844, is, of course, the total increase of population in the state.

for the other counties the different rates of increase are indicated by differences in shading.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 46,362 square miles. The average number of persons to the square mile in 1910 was 38.8; in 1900 and 1890 it was 33.5 and 27.8, respectively. The average number per square mile for the United States as a whole in 1910 was 30.9.

The density of population is given by counties in Table I of Chapter 2 and in the maps on page 1027, both for the entire population and for that living in rural territory, excluding in the latter case the population of places of 2,500 or more, but not excluding the land area of such places.

Yazoo County, with 1,038 square miles, has the largest area, and Alcorn County, with 386 square miles, has the smallest area. Hinds County, containing Jackson city, has the highest density of any county, namely, 74.3 persons per square mile, while Greene County, with 8.5 persons per square mile, has the lowest density.

Minor civil divisions.—The political divisions into which counties are subdivided are collectively termed "Minor civil divisions." In Mississippi the counties are divided into 394 primary divisions, comprising that number of beats. There are also 340 secondary divisions in the state, comprising 44 cities, 159 towns, and 137 villages. These secondary divisions usually form parts of the beats in which they are wholly or partly located, but one city is coextensive with the beat in which it is located. A state law passed in 1906 provided that all municipalities having over 2,000 inhabitants should be classed as cities, those having from 300 to 2,000 inhabitants should be classed as towns, and those having from 100 to 300 inhabitants should be classed as villages. As a result of this law some communities returned as towns in 1900 were returned as cities and villages in 1910, while others returned as villages and one place returned as a city in 1900 were returned as towns in 1910.

Urban and rural population compared.—The following table presents the population of Mississippi at the censuses of 1910, 1900, and 1890, respectively, distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population, together with the percentage of the total population contained in each group at each of the censuses named. The classification is based upon the population of each place as it existed at each census.

As shown by the above table, the urban territory of the state in 1910—that is, the cities of 2,500 inhabitants or more—contained 207,311 inhabitants, or 11.5 per cent of the total population, while 1,589,803 inhabitants, or 88.5 per cent, lived in rural territory. The urban territory as it existed in 1900—that is, the cities and incorporated towns then having 2,500 inhabitants or more—contained 120,035 inhabitants, or 7.7 per cent of the total population, while 1,431,235 inhabitants, or 92.3 per cent, lived in rural territory. There has thus been a considerable increase in the proportion of urban population, but it still constitutes only a comparatively small proportion of the total population. For the United States as a whole the urban population constituted 46.3 per cent of the total population in 1910 and 40.5 per cent of the total population in 1900.

In 1890 and 1900 there were only three cities in the state having over 10,000 inhabitants each, their combined population for each census comprising only 2.6 per cent of the population of the state, while in 1910 there were five cities having over 10,000 inhabitants, their combined population comprising 4.9 per cent of the total population of the state. The proportion of the total population in the remaining urban territory, or that in places having from 2,500 to 10,000 inhabitants each, increased from 2.8 per cent in 1890 to 5.1 in 1900 and to 6.6 in 1910.

The urban territory of the state was contained in 29 cities; the combined population of which is 207,311. The rural territory comprises 311 incorporated places of less than 2,500 inhabitants each, with a combined population of 170,369, and the entire area outside of incorporated places, with a population of 1,419,434. Thus about 10.7 per cent of the population here classified as rural lives in small incorporated communities. Of the 311 places of less than 2,500 inhabitants each, there are 46 having from 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants each, with a combined population of 74,328; 71 having from 500 to 1,000 inhabitants each, with a combined population of 49,017; and 194 having less than 500 inhabitants each, with a combined population of 47,024.

The above table shows further that in all incorporated places, including those of less than 2,500 inhabitants, there was in 1910 a population of 377,680, or 21 per cent of the population of the state. The population of all incorporated places, as they existed in 1900, was 227,504, or 14.7 per cent of the population of the state.

Table I of Chapter 2 shows that 17 counties and one combination of counties had a larger proportion and two counties a smaller proportion of urban population in 1910 than in 1900. Five counties and two combinations of counties which were wholly rural in 1900 were partly urban in 1910, and two counties which were partly urban in 1900 were wholly rural in 1910. Forty-two counties and one combination of counties were wholly rural at both censuses.

In order to compare the rate of growth in urban and rural communities it is necessary in each case, as previously explained, to consider the changes in population which have occurred in the same territory from one decennial census to another. With this end in view places classed as urban or rural according to their population in 1910 are taken as a basis and the aggregate population in 1910 and in 1900 of the same places is then compared. Thus, as shown in the table on page 1025, the total population in 1910 of the cities which at that time had 2,500 inhabitants or more was 207,311, while in 1900 the total population of these same places was 129,665. It may be noted that the latter figure exceeds the total population in 1900 of the cities and towns which at that time had over 2,500 inhabitants each, 120,035 (see table above), by 9,630. The difference is the net result of the passage, since 1900, of certain communities from the rural to the urban class and vice versa, and of annexations of territory during the same period.

In the following table the population for the state as a whole is distributed so as to show, for 1910 and 1900, the combined population of the cities having, in 1910, 2,500 inhabitants or more and the population of the remainder of the state.

CLASS OF PLACES.	POPULATION.		INCREASE: 1900-1910
	1910	1900	Number.	Per cent.
The state.....	1,797,114	1,551,270	245,844	15.8
Cities of 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1910.....	207,311	129,605	77,646	59.9
Remainder of the state.....	1,589,803	1,421,665	168,138	11.8

A comparison of the total population in 1910 of the cities having a population of not less than 2,500 each with the total population of the same places in 1900, as given in the preceding table, shows an increase of 59.9 per cent. This represents the rate of growth of urban communities as thus defined. During the same period the rural population, comprising that of the remainder of the state, increased 11.8 per cent. The population of urban areas thus increased more than five times as rapidly as that of rural. For the United States as a whole urban population increased 34.8 per cent in the last decade and rural population 11.2 per cent. As shown by Table I of Chapter 2, there were 22 counties in Mississippi in which the population living in rural territory decreased and one county that decreased in population in both urban and rural districts.

CHAPTER 2.—COMPOSITION AND CHARACTERISTICS OF THE POPULATION.

Introduction.—The first chapter having given the number of inhabitants of Mississippi by counties and minor civil divisions, the decennial increase and the density of population, and the proportions urban and rural, the present chapter deals with the composition and characteristics of the population. The two chapters cover all the principal topics of the population census except occupations and ownership of homes.

Description of the tables.—The greater part of this chapter consists of three general tables, which present statistics of color, nativity, parentage, sex, citizenship, illiteracy, school attendance, and dwellings and families, as follows: Table I for the state and counties; Table II for cities of more than 10,000 inhabitants; and Table III for cities of 2,500 to 10,000 inhabitants.

A series of summary tables (numbered 1 to 12) reproduces from the general tables the more important state totals, and presents also certain additional data relative to state of birth, age, and marital condition.

On account of the wide differences in characteristics among the different classes of the population, the statistics on each subject are shown according to race, and for the whites according to nativity and parentage. Classification according to nativity and parentage is scarcely necessary for the other races, since nearly all negroes and Indians are native born of native parentage, and nearly all Chinese and Japanese either foreign born or of foreign parentage.

The white population is divided into four groups: (1) Native, native parentage—that is, having both parents born in the United States; (2) native, foreign parentage—having both parents born abroad; (3) native, mixed parentage—having one parent native and the other foreign born; (4) foreign born. As the second and third classes do not differ greatly in characteristics, they are combined in some of the tables; in a few cases all three native white classes are combined.

Since marked differences often exist between urban and rural communities with respect to the composition and characteristics of the population, the two classes are distinguished in connection with several of the subjects. Urban population, as defined by the Bureau of the Census, includes that of all incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more, the remainder being classified as rural.

The census inquiry as to school attendance was merely as to whether the person enumerated had attended any kind of school at any time between September 1, 1909, and the date of enumeration, April 15, 1910.

The Census Bureau classifies as illiterate any person 10 years of age or over who is unable to write, regardless of ability to read.

Color and nativity (Table 1).—Of the total population of Mississippi, 786,111, or 43.7 per cent, are whites, and 1,009,487, or 56.2 per cent, negroes. The corresponding percentages in 1900 were 41.3 and 58.5, respectively. In 38 of the 79 counties the population is more than one-half negro, and in 17 more than three-fourths negro, the highest percentage of negroes being that for Issaquena County (94.2). (See map on page 1043.)

Native whites of native parentage constitute 42.1 per cent of the total population of the state, and 96.3 per cent of the white population. Native whites of foreign or mixed parentage constitute only 1.1 per cent of the total population, and foreign-born whites 0.5 per cent.

Of the urban population, 46.7 per cent are native whites of native parentage; of the rural, 41.5 per cent. The corresponding proportions for native whites of foreign or mixed parentage are 5 and 0.5 per cent, respectively. The percentage of foreign-born whites is 2.2 in the urban population and 0.3 in the rural; the percentage of negroes is 46 in the urban and 57.5 in the rural.

Sex (Table 2).—In the total population of the state there are 905,760 males and 891,354 females, or 101.6 males to 100 females. In 1900 the ratio was 101.5 to 100. Among the whites there are 104.7 males to 100 females; among the negroes, 99.2. Among native whites the ratio is 104.1 to 100, as compared with 173.7 to 100 for the foreign-born whites. In the urban population there are 90.9 males to 100 females, and in the rural, 103.1.

State of birth (Tables 3 and 4).—Of the total native population—that is, population born in the United States—87.5 per cent were born in Mississippi and 12.5 per cent outside the state; of the native white population, 14.7 per cent were born outside the state, and of the native negro, 10.9 per cent. Persons born outside the state constitute a much larger proportion of the native population in urban than in rural communities.

Foreign nationalities (Table 5).—Of the foreign-born white population of Mississippi, persons born in Italy represent 22.8 per cent; Germany, 17.7; Russia, 9.8; England, 8.2; Ireland, 8; Turkey, 5.9; Canada, 4.6; Austria, 4.4; Sweden, 3.1; France, 3.1; all other countries, 12.5 per cent. Of the total white stock of foreign origin, which includes persons born abroad and also natives having one or both parents born abroad, Germany contributed 23 per cent; Ireland, 15.4; Italy, 13.4; England, 10.1; Russia, 5.6; France, 4.4; Canada, 3.9; Austria, 3.3; Turkey, 3; Scotland, 3; Sweden, 2.6 per cent.

Voting and militia ages (Table 6).—The total number of males 21 years of age and over is 426,953, representing 23.8 per cent of the population. Of such males, 45.1 per cent are whites and 54.7 per cent negroes. Native whites represent 43.9 per cent of the total number and foreign-born whites 1.2 per cent. Of the 5,235 foreign-born white males of voting age, 2,445, or 46.7 per cent, are naturalized. Males of militia age—18 to 44—number 345,745.

Age (Tables 7 and 8).—Of the total population, 14.4 per cent are under 5 years of age, 25.8 per cent from 5 to 14 years, inclusive, 20.7 per cent from 15 to 24, 25 per cent from 25 to 44, and 13.7 per cent 45 years of age and over. The foreign-born white population comprises comparatively few children, only 7.6 per cent of this class being under 15 years of age, while nearly four-fifths (79.3 per cent) are 25 years of age and over. The proportion of children under 15 is the same (40.6 per cent) for the native whites of native parentage and the negroes; the proportion under 5, however, is somewhat higher among the native whites of native parentage.

The urban population shows a smaller proportion of children than the rural and a larger proportion of persons in the prime of life. Migration to the city explains this at least in part. Of the urban population, 32.4 per cent are from 25 to 44 years of age, inclusive, and of the rural, 24 per cent.

School attendance (Table 9).—The total number of persons of school age—that is, from 6 to 20 years, inclusive—is 644,805, of whom 388,072, or 60.2 per cent, attended school. In addition to these, 14,913 persons under 6 and 5,690 of 21 and over attended school. For boys from 6 to 20 years, inclusive, the percentage attending school was 59.7; for girls, 60.7. For children from 6 to 14 years, inclusive, the percentage attending school was 72.2. The percentage for children of this age among native whites of native parentage was 84.2; among native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 82.9; among foreign-born whites, 44; and among negroes, 63.7. (See Table I.) In urban communities the percentage of children of that age attending school was 79.9, and in rural, 71.5.

Illiteracy (Table 10).—There are 290,235 illiterates in the state, representing 22.4 per cent of the total population 10 years of age and over, as compared with 32 per cent in 1900. The percentage of illiteracy is 35.6 among negroes, 15.1 among foreign-born whites, and 5.2 among native whites. It is 5.3 for native whites of native parentage and 2.2 for native whites of foreign or mixed parentage.

For each class of the population the percentage of illiterates in the rural population greatly exceeds that in the urban; and for all classes combined the percentage is 23.8 in the rural population as against 13 in the urban.

For persons from 10 to 20 years, inclusive, whose literacy depends largely upon present school facilities and school attendance, the percentage of illiteracy is 14.4. (See Table I.)

Marital condition (Table 11).—In the population 15 years of age and over, 34.3 per cent of the males are single and 25.6 per cent of the females. The percentage married is 59.5 for males and 60.7 for females, and the percentage widowed 5.2 and 12.5, respectively. The percentages of those reported as divorced, 0.5 and 0.9, respectively, are believed to be too small, because of the probability that many divorced persons class themselves as single or widowed.

That the percentage single is so much smaller for women than for men is due largely to the fact that women marry younger. Thus 19.6 per cent of the females from 15 to 19 years of age are married, as compared with 2.3 per cent of the males, and 62.1 per cent of the females from 20 to 24 years are married, as compared with 38.6 per cent of the males. In the next age group, 25 to 34 years, the difference largely disappears. That there is a larger proportion of widows than of widowers may indicate that men more often remarry than women, but, since husbands are generally older than their wives, the marriage relationship is more often broken by death of the husband than by death of the wife.

For the main elements of the population the percentages of married persons among those 15 years of age and over are as follows: Foreign-born whites, 64.2 for males, 64.7 for females; native whites of native parentage, 58.6 and 61.5, respectively; native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, 55.6 and 53.6; negroes, 60.3 and 60.2.

These percentages by no means indicate the relative tendency of the several classes as regards marriage. To determine that, the comparison should be made by age periods, since the proportion married in any class is determined largely by the proportion who have reached the marrying age. Similarly, the proportion widowed depends largely on the proportion past middle life. The percentage married, both for males and females, is higher in rural than in urban communities.

Dwellings and families.—The total number of dwellings in Mississippi is 376,420, and the total number of families 384,724, indicating that in comparatively few cases does more than one family occupy a dwelling. (See Table I.) The average number of persons per dwelling is 4.8, and the average number per family, 4.7.
