ARIZONA

POPULATION—ARIZONA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Arizona was organized as a Territory in 1863 and was admitted to the Union as the forty-eighth State in February, 1912. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 435,573, which represents an increase of 101,411, or 30.3 per cent, as compared with its population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 113,810 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 3.8, as compared with 2.9 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Arizona from 1870, the year in which its area was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF ARIZONA: 1870 TO 1930

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Arizona is shown by counties, election precincts, justice precincts, school districts, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are two cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Phoenix, the capital and largest city, had a population of 48,118, which represents an increase of 19,065, or 65.6 per cent, over its population in 1920. Tucson, the second city in the State, had 32,506 inhabitants, and its increase during the past decade was 12,214, or 60.2 per cent.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 14 counties of Arizona from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 11 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, while 3 counties show decreases. Maricopa County, which includes the city of Phoenix, shows the largest increase, both in number and in rate. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since 1920.

³ Cocoino organized from part of Yavapai in 1891.

⁵ Part of Pima taken to form Santa Cruz in 1899.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Arizona are election precincts, justice precincts, or school districts. These precincts or districts include the secondary divisions, which are known as cities and towns. Table 4 shows the population of each county by precincts or districts, cities, and towns for the last two censuses. The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the precincts or districts in which they are respectively situated. Where an incorporated place occupies two or more precincts or parts of precincts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first precinct. The population of Yuma, which includes five entire precincts, is shown in Roman type, followed by the precinct population in italic type. Mesa and Tempe towns are similarly presented.

Changes in the boundaries of precincts or districts and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930 AND 1920

[The "precincts" shown in the table are election precincts or justice precincts; for certain counties not organized into precincts the figures are presented by "districts," that is, school districts. Because of numerous changes in boundaries of precincts, no comparative figures for 1910 are given. Counties showing totals for 1920, but no other comparative figures, have been redistricted since 1920. The Indian reservations, for which figures were shown separately in 1920, have been absorbed by the precincts in which they are located]

ARKANSAS

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Arkansas was organized as a territory in March, 1819, and was admitted to the Union as the twenty-fifth State in June, 1836. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 1,854,482, which represents an increase of 102,278, or 5.8 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 52,525 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 35.3, as compared with 33.4 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Arkansas from 1810, the year in which its area was first enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase in each decade.

Counties, cities, and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6), the population of Arkansas is shown by counties, townships, and incorporated cities and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are eight cities and one town in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase in each decade. Little Rock, the capital and largest city, first attained a population of 10,000 between 1860 and 1870. Fort Smith has ranked as the second city in the State since 1890. Texarkana, on the boundary line between Arkansas and Texas, has a total population of 27,366. The figures shown in Table 2 represent the population of that part of the urban area of Texarkana which is in Arkansas. The town of Blytheville and the cities of El Dorado and Jonesboro have been added to this group by reason of increase in population between 1920 and 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, cities, and incorporated towns for the last three censuses. The primary divisions of the Arkansas counties are the townships. These townships include the secondary divisions which are incorporated as cities or towns. The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the township in which each respective place is located. Where a city or incorporated town occupies parts of two townships, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first township.

Changes in the boundaries of townships and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920 reference may be made to the reports of the Fourteenth Census: 1920, Volume I, Table 53.

CALIFORNIA

POPULATION—CALIFORNIA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—California, ceded to the United States by Mexico in 1848, was admitted to the Union as the thirty-first State in September, 1850. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 5,677,251, representing an increase of 2,250,390 or 65.7 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 155,652 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 36.5, as compared with 22.0 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of California from 1850, the year of its first enumeration, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of California is shown by counties, townships, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 47 cities in California which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Los Angeles, the largest city in the State and the fifth city in the United States, has a population of 1,238,048, which represents an increase of 661,375 or 114.7 per cent over its population in 1920. San Francisco, the second city, has 634,394 inhabitants and an increase since 1920 of 127,718, or 25.2 per cent. Oakland, the third city, has a population of 284,063. Two other cities, San Diego and Long Beach, have more than 100,000 inhabitants. There are six cities in the population group between 50,000 and 100,000. These cities, in the order of their population, are Sacramento, Berkeley, Pasadena, Glendale, San Jose, and Fresno. Of the cities with more than 10,000 inhabitants, 18 more than doubled in population between 1920 and 1930, and 23 cities in the State first attained a population of 10,000 or more between 1920 and 1930. One of these cities, South Gate, in Los Angeles County, with 19,632 inhabitants in 1930, was not incorporated until 1923.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 58 counties of California from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 52 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, and 6 show decreases. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since the census of 1920.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of California are known as judicial townships. The judicial townships include the secondary divisions, which are incorporated as cities and towns. San Francisco is in a class by itself, being incorporated as the "City and County of San Francisco." Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, cities, and towns for the last three censuses. The population of the incorporated places is shown in italics under the population of the judicial townships in which they are respectively situated. Where an incorporated place occupies two or more townships, or parts of townships, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first township.

Changes in the boundaries of townships and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "townships" shown in this table are judicial townships. Where no comparative figures for townships are shown the counties have been redistricted at some time between the censuses. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 53.]

COLORADO

POPULATION—COLORADO

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Colorado was organized as a Territory in February, 1861, and in August, 1876, was admitted to the Union as the thirty-eighth State. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 1,035,791, which represents an increase of 96,162, or 10.2 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 103,658 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 10.0, as compared with 9.1 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Colorado from 1860, the year in which the area now included in the State was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Colorado is shown by counties, election precincts, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 8 cities in Colorado which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. Denver, the capital and largest city in the State, has a population of 287,861, which represents an increase of 31,370, or 12.2 per cent, over its population in 1920. Pueblo, the second city in the State, has 50,096 inhabitants. The remaining cities in this group, in the order of their population, are Colorado Springs, Greeley, Trinidad, Fort Collins, Boulder, and Grand Junction.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 63 counties of Colorado from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 37 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, while 26 show decreases. No new counties have been organized, and there has been but one change in county boundaries since 1920—that between Dolores and San Miguel Counties in 1925.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Colorado are known as election precincts. There are also five cities which are independent of election precincts and constitute primary divisions of the county. Denver is in a class by itself, being incorporated as the "City and County of Denver." The election precincts include the secondary divisions, which are incorporated as cities and towns. Table 4 shows the population of each county by precincts, cities, and towns for the last three censuses. The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the precincts in which they are respectively situated. Where an incorporated place occupies two or more precincts, or parts of precincts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first precinct. The population of some of the larger cities, each of which includes several precincts or parts of precincts, is presented in roman type followed by the precinct population in italic type.

Changes in the boundaries of precincts and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920 reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "precincts" shown in the table are election precincts. Counties showing totals but no comparative figures for election precincts for 1920 or 1910 have been redistricted at some time between censuses. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 53]

CONNECTICUT

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Connecticut was one of the original thirteen States. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 1,606,903, which represents an increase of 226,272, or 16.4 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 4,820 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 333.4, as compared with 286.4 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Connecticut from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Connecticut is shown by counties, cities, towns, and boroughs, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 18 cities and 2 boroughs in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities and boroughs the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. Hartford, the capital and largest city, had a population of 164,072, which represents an increase of 26,036, or 18.9 per cent, since the census of 1920. New Haven is the second city in Connecticut, with a population of 162,655, and Bridgeport is third, with 146,716 inhabitants. The next three cities in the order of their population are Waterbury, New Britain, and Stamford. Wallingford borough and Shelton city first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 8 counties in Connecticut from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area and population per square mile in 1930. No new counties have been organized and there have been no changes in county boundaries between 1920 and 1930. All of the counties in the State have increased in population during the past decade.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 4 shows the population of each county by towns, cities, and boroughs. The primary divisions of the counties are known as towns. These towns include the secondary divisions which are incorporated as cities or boroughs. The population of the cities and boroughs is shown in italics under the population of the towns in which the places are respectively located. Several cities and one borough are coextensive with the towns in which they are located.

Changes in the boundaries of the towns and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920 reference may be made to the reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

DELAWARE

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Delaware was one of the thirteen original States. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 238,380, which represents an increase of 15,377, or 6.9 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 1,965 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 121.3, as compared with 113.5 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Delaware from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties, cities, and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Delaware is shown by counties, representative districts, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—Table 2 shows the population of Wilmington, the only large city in Delaware, from 1840, the date of the first census subsequent to its incorporation, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the three counties in Delaware from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and the population per square mile in 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 4 shows the population of each county by districts, with separate figures for towns and cities. The minor civil divisions into which the counties in Delaware are divided are called "representative districts." "District 1" as shown in the table might, therefore, be more completely described as "Representative district No. 1." These districts, 35 in number, are the primary divisions of the counties in Delaware, which serve as local taxation units. There are also 52 secondary divisions, comprising 3 cities and 49 incorporated towns. Except in the case of Wilmington, which occupies five representative districts, each of these secondary divisions, or incorporated places, forms a part of some representative district (or districts). The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the district in which each respective place is located. Where an incorporated place occupies parts of two districts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first district.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "districts" shown in the table are representative districts. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 53]

³ SUSSEX.—Millsboro town returned in 1920 and 1910 in districts 6 and 8; part in district 8 (population 52 in 1920 and 39 in 1910) reverted to that district in 1920. See footnote 1, Table 5, for combined population of Delmar town in Delaware and Maryland.

Incorporated places.—Table 5 shows the population of the incorporated places (cities and towns) in Delaware in 1930 and 1920. In this table the places are arranged in alphabetical order, each followed by the name of the county in which the city or town is located. In Table 6 the population of Wilmington, the only city having more than 10,000 inhabitants, is presented by wards.

POPULATION—DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the District.—The District of Columbia was established as the seat of the Federal Government in accordance with acts of Congress passed in 1790 and 1791. Congress first met in the District in 1800, and assumed jurisdiction over it in 1801. According to the Fifteenth Census, taken as of April 1, 1930, the population of the District of Columbia was 486,869, which represents an increase of 49,298, or 11.3 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the District is 62 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 7,852.7, as compared with 7,057.6 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of the District of Columbia at each decennial census from 1800 to 1930, together with the increase in each decade. The figures for the censuses prior to 1850 include the population of about 30 square miles south of the Potomac River, originally a part of the District but retroceded to Virginia in 1846.

Subdivisions of the District.—The city of Washington has been coextensive with the District of Columbia since February 11, 1895, when, by Act of Congress, Georgetown was made a part of Washington. Its population is essentially urban in character. The District has no wards or other local governmental subdivisions; the only officially recognized subdivisions are police precincts. There have recently been established, however, certain unofficial subdivisions, called tracts. These tracts, which are considerably smaller than the police precincts, have been established by agreement among various local agencies (governmental and private) interested in social work, education, etc., as representing homogeneous areas of convenient size, for study, for tabulation of records, and for the presentation of statistics. It is proposed to retain these areas unchanged from census to census so as to make possible the presentation of comparative statistics for the various sections of the city. (The boundaries of the police precincts have been changed since 1920 and are subject to change at any time.) Figures are presented for both police precincts and tracts in Table 2, and for tracts alone, arranged in numerical order, in Table 3.

FLORIDA

POPULATION—FLORIDA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Florida was organized as a Territory in 1822 and was admitted to the Union as the twenty-seventh State in March, 1845. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 1,468,211, which represents an increase of 499,741, or 51.6 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 54,861 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 26.8, as compared with 17.7 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Florida from 1830, the year in which the Territory of Florida was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Florida is shown by counties, election precincts, and incorporated cities, towns, and 1 village, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 14 cities in Florida which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. Jacksonville, the largest city, has a population of 129,549, which represents an increase of 37,991, or 41.5 per cent, over its population in 1920. Miami, the second city in the State, has a population of 110,637, representing an increase of 81,066, or 274.1 per cent, since 1920. Tampa, with 101,161 inhabitants, is now the third city in Florida. The remaining cities in this group, in the order of their population, are St. Petersburg, Pensacola, Orlando, West Palm Beach, Lakeland, Daytona Beach, Key West, St. Augustine, Tallahassee, Gainesville, and Sanford.

² Not returned separately.

³ Returns incomplete; slave population not reported.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 67 counties in Florida from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 13 were organized between 1920 and 1930. There are 40 counties the boundaries of which have remained unchanged since 1920. Of these, 35 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, while 5 show a decrease.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Florida are known as election precincts. These election precincts include the secondary divisions, which are incorporated as cities, towns, and villages. Table 4 shows the population of each county by election precincts, cities, towns, and villages for the last three censuses. The population of the secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the election precincts in which they are respectively located. Several of the cities and towns are coextensive with the precincts in which they are located, and others comprise two or more precincts, or parts of precincts. Where a city or other incorporated place occupies parts of two or more precincts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first precinct.

Changes in the boundaries of precincts and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1920 and 1930, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "precincts" shown in the table are election precincts. Where no comparative figures are shown, the counties have been organized at some time between the censuses or have been redistricted. For other changes in boundaries, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 53]
