GEORGIA

POPULATION—GEORGIA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Georgia was one of the original thirteen States. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 2,908,506, which represents an increase of 12,674, or 0.4 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 58,725 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 49.5, as compared with 49.3 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Georgia from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase in each decade.

Counties, cities, and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6), the population of Georgia is shown by counties, militia districts, towns, cities, and other minor civil divisions, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 15 cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease in each decade. Atlanta, the capital, has been the largest city in the State since 1880. Its population of 270,366 represents an increase of 69,750, or 34.8 per cent, since 1920. Savannah, the largest city before 1880, is now the second city in the State. Augusta has displaced Macon since 1920 as the third city in Georgia. Macon is now fourth in rank, with Columbus fifth. The remaining cities of 10,000 or more, in order of population, are Rome, La Grange, Athens, Waycross, Albany, Brunswick, Valdosta, Decatur, Thomasville, and Griffin. The three last-named cities first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 161 counties in Georgia, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, six have been organized since 1920. The organization of these new counties changed the boundaries and areas of 12 other counties, as indicated in the notes to Table 3.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 4 shows the population of each county by militia districts and other minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The primary divisions of the counties of Georgia are the militia districts. The militia districts include the secondary divisions, which are known as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages, except that the borough (or city) of Atlanta itself constitutes a primary division, coordinate with the militia districts. The population of these secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the districts in which they are respectively situated. Several of the cities, towns, or boroughs are coextensive with the districts in which they are located, and some of the larger cities comprise two or more districts or parts of districts. When an incorporated place occupies parts of two or more districts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first district.

Changes in the boundaries of militia districts and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920 reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "districts" shown in the table are militia districts. Where no comparative figures are shown, the counties have been organized at some time between the censuses or have been redistricted. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 53]

2 An act of the Georgia State legislature, approved Aug. 23, 1929, provides for the establishment of the "Municipality of 'Macon'," including therein, in addition to the city of Macon, one other city and three unincorporated communities. The act further provides that "for the purpose of this act only" these cities "shall be known as boroughs" but that it shall not be unlawful to refer to them as cities. The population of the "Municipality of 'Macon'" as thus defined, and of its constituent areas, is as follows:

Municipality of "Macon".....	64,045
Macon city or borough.....	53,829
Payne city or borough.....	426
Unincorporated communities, Nos. 1 to 3.....	9,790

IDAHO

POPULATION—IDAHO

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Idaho was organized as a Territory in 1863, and was admitted to the Union as the forty-third State in 1890. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 445,032, which represents an increase of 13,166, or 3.0 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 83,354 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 5.3, as compared with 5.2 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Idaho from 1870, the year in which the Territory of Idaho was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Idaho is shown by counties, election precincts, cities, towns, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are two cities in Idaho which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. Boise, the capital and largest city, has a population of 21,544, which represents an increase of 151, or 0.7 per cent, over its population in 1920. Pocatello, the second city in the State, has 16,471 inhabitants.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 44 counties in Idaho from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 19 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, while 25 show decreases. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since 1920. Yellowstone National Park, part of which is located in the State, is independent of any county organization.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Idaho are known as election precincts. The election precincts include the secondary divisions, which are incorporated as cities, towns, and villages. Table 4 shows the population of each county by election precincts, cities, towns, and villages for the last two censuses. The population of the incorporated places is shown in italics under the population of the precincts in which they are respectively situated. Where an incorporated place occupies two or more precincts, or parts of precincts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first precinct.

Changes in the boundaries of precincts and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930 AND 1920

[The "precincts" shown in the table are election precincts. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; because of numerous changes in county and precinct boundaries between 1910 and 1920, no comparative figures for 1910 are given. The Indian Reservations for which figures were shown separately in 1920 have been absorbed by the precincts in which they are located]

POPULATION—ILLINOIS

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Illinois was organized as a Territory in 1809 and was admitted to the Union in 1818 as the twenty-first State. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 7,630,654, which represents an increase of 1,145,374, or 17.7 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 56,043 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 136.2, as compared with 115.7 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Illinois from 1810, the year in which the Territory of Illinois was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Illinois is shown by counties, cities, townships, towns, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 58 cities and villages in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Chicago, the largest city in Illinois and the second city in the United States, has a population of 3,376,438, which represents an increase of 674,733, or 25.0 per cent, over its population in 1920. Peoria, the second in population, is the only other city in the State with more than 100,000 inhabitants. The cities in the group from 50,000 to 100,000, in the order of population, are Rockford, East St. Louis, Springfield, Cicero, Oak Park, Evanston, and Decatur.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 102 counties of Illinois from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 40 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, and 62 show decreases. Of the eight counties in Illinois which increased more than 25 per cent, four, Cook, Du Page, Kane, and Lake, are wholly or in part within the suburban area surrounding the city of Chicago. The other four, Macon, Madison, Peoria, and Winnebago, all include important urban centers. The population increase in these eight counties is nearly as great as the total increase for the entire State. No new counties have been organized and there have been no changes in county boundaries since 1920.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Illinois are the townships, election precincts, and the city of Chicago, which is independent of township organization. The townships and election precincts include the secondary divisions which are incorporated as cities, towns, and villages. Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, precincts, cities, towns, and villages for the last three censuses. The population of the incorporated places is shown in italics under the population of the primary divisions in which they are respectively located. Where an incorporated place occupies two or more townships, or parts of townships, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first township.

Changes in the boundaries of townships, election precincts, and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "precincts" shown in the table for some of the counties are election precincts. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 53]

Incorporated places.—Table 5 shows the population of the incorporated places (cities, towns, and villages) in Illinois, in 1930 and 1920. In this table the places are arranged in alphabetical order, each followed by the name of the county in which the city, town, or village is located. In Table 6 the population of the more important incorporated places is presented by wards.

INDIANA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Indiana was organized as a Territory in 1800 and was admitted to the Union as the nineteenth State in December, 1816. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 3,238,503, which represents an increase of 308,113, or 10.5 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 36,045 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 89.8, as compared with 81.3 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Indiana from 1800, the year in which Indiana Territory was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase or decrease during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Indiana is shown by counties, townships, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 34 cities in Indiana which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Indianapolis, the capital and largest city in the State, has a population of 364,161, which represents an increase of 49,967, or 15.9 per cent, over its population in 1920. Fort Wayne, the second city in the State, has a population of 114,946. Three other cities, South Bend, Evansville, and Gary, have more than 100,000 inhabitants. The population group of 50,000 to 100,000 includes the cities of Hammond, Terre Haute and East Chicago.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Indiana are the townships. These townships include the secondary divisions, which are incorporated as cities and towns. Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, cities, and towns for the last three censuses. The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the townships in which the places are respectively located. Several of the cities and towns occupy parts of two or more townships; in these cases the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first township.

Changes in the boundaries of townships, cities, and towns between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.
