IOWA

POPULATION—IOWA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Iowa was organized as a Territory in 1838 and was admitted to the Union as the twenty-ninth State in December, 1846. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 2,470,939, which represents an increase of 66,918, or 2.8 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 55,586 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 44.5, as compared with 43.2 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Iowa from 1840, the year in which the Territory of Iowa was first enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

† Includes population of area now constituting that part of Minnesota lying west of the Mississippi River and a line drawn from its source northward to the Canadian boundary. This area formed a part of Iowa Territory in 1840.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Iowa is shown by counties, townships, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures for previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 21 cities in Iowa which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. Des Moines, the capital, is the largest city in the State, with a population of 142,559, which represents an increase of 16,091, or 12.7 per cent, over its population in 1920. Sioux City is the second city in the State, with 79,183 inhabitants. The next five cities in the order of their population are Davenport, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Council Bluffs, and Dubuque. Three cities in this group, Newton, Ames, and Oskaloosa, first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 99 counties in Iowa from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 51 increased in population between 1920 and 1930 and 48 show decreases. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since the census of 1920.

² Less than one-tenth of 1 per cent increase.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Iowa are known as townships. The one exception to this rule is Sioux City, which is independent of any township organization and itself constitutes one of the primary divisions of Woodbury County. The townships include the secondary divisions, which are incorporated as cities or towns. Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, cities, and towns for the last three censuses. The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the townships in which the places are respectively located. Where a city or town occupies two or more townships or parts of townships, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first township.

Changes in the boundaries of townships and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920 reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

³⁸ WRIGHT.—County totals for 1920 and 1910 include population (2,226 in 1920; 2,065 in 1910) of Clarion township, coextensive with Clarion city, disorganized and parts annexed to Dayton, Grant, Lake, and Lincoln townships in 1922.

Incorporated places.—Table 5 shows the population of the incorporated places (cities and towns) in Iowa in 1930 and 1920. In this table the places are arranged in alphabetical order, each followed by the name of the county in which the city or town is located. In Table 6 the population of the more important places is presented by wards.

KANSAS

POPULATION—KANSAS

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—The area now comprising Kansas and part of Colorado was organized as the Territory of Kansas in 1854, and in January, 1861, that portion of the Territory lying within the present boundaries of Kansas was admitted to the Union as the thirty-fourth State. The population of Kansas on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 1,880,999, which represents an increase of 111,742, or 6.3 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 81,774 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 23.0, as compared with 21.6 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Kansas from 1860, the year in which the area of the present State was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Kansas is shown by counties, cities, and townships, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 20 cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Kansas City, the largest city in the State, has a population of 121,857, which represents an increase of 20,680, or 20.4 per cent, over its population in 1920. Wichita, the second city, has a population of 111,110, representing an increase of 38,893, or 53.9 per cent, over its population in 1920. Topeka, the capital, is the third city in the State, with Hutchinson fourth, and Salina fifth. Of the remaining cities in this group, Newton, Manhattan, and Dodge City first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 105 counties of Kansas from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 63 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, while 42 show a decrease. No new counties have been organized and there have been no changes in county boundaries since the census of 1920.

² Garfield annexed to Finney in 1898.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Kansas are the townships and independent cities. The townships include the secondary divisions, all of which are incorporated as cities. Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships and cities for the last three censuses. The population of those cities which constitute secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the townships in which the cities are respectively located. Where a city occupies parts of two or more townships, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first township.

Changes in the boundaries of townships and cities between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

POPULATION—KENTUCKY

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Kentucky, originally a part of Virginia, was admitted to the Union as the fifteenth State in 1792. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 2,614,589, which represents an increase of 197,959, or 8.2 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 40,181 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 65.1, as compared with 60.1 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Kentucky from 1790, the year in which the area of the State was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Kentucky is shown by counties, magisterial districts, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 13 cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Louisville, the largest city in Kentucky, has a population of 307,745, representing an increase of 72,854, or 31 per cent, over its population in 1920. The second city in the State is Covington, with 65,252 inhabitants. The next four cities in the order of their population are Lexington, Paducah, Newport, and Ashland.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 120 counties of Kentucky from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 45 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, while 75 show decreases. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since 1920.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Kentucky are known as magisterial districts. The magisterial districts include the secondary divisions, which are incorporated as cities and towns. There are also two villages (Union, in Boone County, and Worthington, in Greenup County) which constitute secondary divisions. Table 4 shows the population of each county by magisterial districts, cities, towns, etc., for the last three censuses. The population of the secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the districts in which the places are respectively located. Where an incorporated place occupies two or more districts, or parts of districts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first district. The population of several of the cities, each of which includes two or more entire districts, is presented in roman type followed by the district population in italics.

Changes in the boundaries of magisterial districts and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "districts" shown in the table are magisterial districts. Counties showing totals but no comparative figures for magisterial districts for 1910 or 1920 have been redistricted at some time between the censuses. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 53]

POPULATION—LOUISIANA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—The greater part of the area now constituting Louisiana—that part lying west of the Mississippi River—was organized in 1804 as the Territory of Orleans, and in April, 1812, it was admitted to the Union as the eighteenth State, under the name of Louisiana. The Baton Rouge District—that part of the present State lying east of the Mississippi River—was added very shortly thereafter, thus giving Louisiana its present extent. The population of Louisiana on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 2,101,593, which represents an increase of 303,084, or 16.9 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 45,409 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 46.3, as compared with 39.6 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Louisiana from 1810, the year in which it was first enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Parishes and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Louisiana is shown by parishes (which correspond to the counties in other States), wards, cities, and incorporated towns and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are eight cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. New Orleans, the largest city in Louisiana, has a population of 458,762, which represents an increase of 71,543, or 18.5 per cent, over its population in 1920. Shreveport, the second city in the State, has 76,655 inhabitants and its increase during the past decade was 32,781, or 74.7 per cent. The remaining cities in this group, in the order of their population, are Baton Rouge, the capital, and Monroe, Alexandria, Lake Charles, Lafayette, and Bogalusa. The two last-named cities first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

Parishes.—Table 3 shows the population of the 64 parishes of Louisiana from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each parish and its population per square mile in 1930. Of the 64 parishes, 46 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, and 18 show decreases. No new parishes have been organized, and there have been no changes in parish boundaries since 1920.

¹ State total for 1890 includes 1 Indian specially enumerated and not counted as part of the population of any parish.

³ Part of Catahoulin taken to form La Salle in 1913, but prior to Thirteenth Census date (April 15).

⁴ Evangeline organized from part of St. Landry in 1911.

Minor civil divisions.—The parishes of Louisiana are divided into police jury wards, which constitute the primary divisions. The city of New Orleans, which is coextensive with Orleans Parish, also constitutes a primary division. The police jury wards include the secondary divisions, which are known as cities, towns, and villages. Table 4 shows the population of each parish by wards, cities, and incorporated towns and villages, for the last three censuses. The population of the cities, towns, and villages which constitute the secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the wards in which the places are respectively located. Where a city, town, or village occupies two or more wards or parts of wards, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first ward.

Changes in the boundaries of police jury wards, or incorporated places, between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF PARISHES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "wards" shown in the table are police jury wards. Parishes showing no comparative figures for 1920 or 1910 have been organized at some time between the censuses, or have been redivided. For other changes in boundaries between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 53.]

MAINE

POPULATION—MAINE

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Maine, originally a part of Massachusetts, was admitted to the Union as the twenty-third State on March 15, 1820. Its population, according to the Fifteenth Census, taken as of April 1, 1930, was 797,423, which represents an increase of 29,409, or 3.8 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 29,895 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 26.7, as compared with 25.7 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Maine from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase in each decade.

Counties, cities, and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Maine is shown by counties, cities, towns, and other minor civil divisions, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are nine cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. The figures shown for the earlier censuses represent in many cases the population of the town prior to its incorporation as a city. Portland, the largest city, first attained a population of 10,000 between 1820 and 1830. Lewiston and Bangor retain their 1920 positions as the second and third cities in the State. South Portland and Westbrook first reached a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930. Bath is included in Table 2 for purposes of comparison with similar tables in reports of earlier censuses, although in 1930 its population had fallen below 10,000.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 4 shows the population of each county by towns, cities, and other minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. In the more thickly settled parts of the State the usual minor civil divisions are towns and cities; in other parts of the State there are sparsely settled areas known as plantations, townships, grants, gores, surpluses, and tracts. The population of the incorporated villages (including three whose incorporation has recently been discontinued but whose boundaries are still definitely known) is shown in italics under the population of the towns in which the villages are respectively located.

Changes in the boundaries of townships and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[A blank in the column for any year indicates that no population was returned. Areas in which no population has been reported at any of the last three censuses are not shown. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. 1, Table 53.]

MARYLAND

POPULATION—MARYLAND

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Maryland was one of the original thirteen States. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 1,631,526, which represents an increase of 181,865, or 12.5 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 9,941 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 164.1, as compared with 145.8 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Maryland from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties, cities, and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6), the population of Maryland is shown by counties, election districts, and incorporated cities, towns, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are five cities and one town in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Baltimore, the largest city, had a population of 804,874, and ranks as the eighth city in the United States. The second city of Maryland is Cumberland, with a population of 37,747, and Hagerstown is third, with 30,861 inhabitants. The remaining places in this group, in the order of population, are Frederick, Annapolis, and Salisbury town. Salisbury first reached a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

Counties.—Maryland has 23 counties and the independent city of Baltimore, which has the status of a county. Table 3 shows the population of these counties from 1890 to 1930, together with the population per square mile in 1930. Of the 23 counties in Maryland, 14 show an increase since the census of 1920 and 9 show a decrease. The four counties in Maryland which show the greatest increases in population are all contiguous to large cities. Baltimore County, which includes the greater part of the suburban area of Baltimore, increased 66.5 per cent as compared with 9.7 per cent in the city proper. Anne Arundel County, also adjoining Baltimore, increased 27.1 per cent. The two counties adjoining the city of Washington—Montgomery and Prince Georges—increased 40.9 per cent and 38.6 per cent, respectively.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 4 shows the population of each county by election districts, cities, towns, and villages, for the last three censuses. The primary divisions of the counties of Maryland are the election districts. These election districts include the secondary divisions, which are known as cities, towns, and villages. The population of these secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the districts in which they are geographically situated. Several of the cities and towns are coextensive with the districts in which they are located and others comprise two or more districts or parts of districts. Where an incorporated place occupies parts of two or more districts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first district.

Changes in the boundaries of election districts and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920 reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "districts" shown in the table are election districts. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. 1, Table 53.]

MASSACHUSETTS

POPULATION—MASSACHUSETTS

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Massachusetts was one of the original thirteen States. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 4,249,614, which represents an increase of 397,258, or 10.3 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 8,039 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 528.6, as compared with 479.2 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Massachusetts from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Massachusetts is shown by counties, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities.—Table 2 shows for the 39 cities in the State the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. The figures shown for the earlier censuses represent in many cases the population of the town prior to its incorporation as a city. Boston, the capital and largest city, has a population of 781,188, which represents an increase of 33,128, or 4.4 per cent, over its population in 1920. Worcester, the second city, has 195,311 inhabitants. The next 7 cities, in the order of their population, are Springfield, Fall River, Cambridge, New Bedford, Somerville, Lynn, and Lowell. Each of these cities has a population of more than 100,000. Newburyport, with a population of 15,084, is the smallest city in the State.

Under the State law a town must have a population of 12,000 before it can be incorporated as a city. There were 16 towns in 1920, however, with a population in excess of this figure which have retained their town organization. The largest of these is Brookline, with a population in 1930 amounting to 47,490.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 14 counties of Massachusetts from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. All of the counties in the State have increased in population during the past decade. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since 1920.

³ Part of Middlesex annexed to Norfolk in 1907. Part of Norfolk annexed to Suffolk in 1912. Boundary line between Cambridge city, Middlesex County, and Boston city, Suffolk County, changed in 1910.

Minor civil divisions.—The counties of Massachusetts are divided into towns and cities. There are no incorporated villages. Table 4 shows the population of each county by towns and cities for the last three censuses.

Changes in the boundaries of towns and cities between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.
