POPULATION—NEBRASKA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Nebraska was admitted to the Union as the thirty-seventh State in March, 1867. The area now constituting the State was included in the Louisiana Purchase in 1803, and belonged successively to the District of Louisiana, the Territory of Louisiana, the Territory of Missouri, the "Indian Country," and the Territory of Nebraska. At the time of its organization in 1854, the Territory of Nebraska included, in addition to the area of the present State, certain areas now in North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, and Colorado. In 1882 a small tract of land was annexed from Dakota Territory, and in 1908 another small tract was ceded by South Dakota and annexed by Nebraska.

The population of Nebraska on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 1,377,963, which represents an increase of 81,591, or 6.3 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, was 76,808 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 17.9, as compared with 16.9 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Nebraska from 1860 to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Nebraska is shown by counties, election precincts, townships, cities, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are eight cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Omaha, the largest city, had a population of 214,006 in 1930, which represents an increase of 22,405, or 11.7 per cent, over its population in 1920. Lincoln, the capital, is the second city in Nebraska, with 75,933 inhabitants. The remaining cities in this group, in the order of their population, are Grand Island, Hastings, North Platte, Fremont, Norfolk, and Beatrice. The three last-named cities first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

¹ South Omaha city annexed to Omaha city between 1910 and 1920. Combined population: 150,355 in 1910; 128,556 in 1900; 148,514 in 1890.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 93 counties in Nebraska from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 50 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, while 43 decreased in population. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in the county boundaries since the census of 1920.

² Old Arthur County annexed to McPherson between 1890 and 1900. Present Arthur organized from part of McPherson in 1913.

³ Boyd formed from unorganized territory in 1891.

⁴ Morrill organized from part of Cheyenne in 1909.

⁵ Part of Union, S. Dak., ceded to Dakota in 1903.

⁶ Garden organized from part of Deuel in 1910; part of Garden annexed to Grant in 1919.

Minor civil divisions.—In some of the counties in Nebraska the primary divisions of the rural area are known as election precincts, in others as townships; and in many cases the cities form primary divisions (that is, they are independent of any precinct or township and coordinate with the precincts or townships in the political organization of the county). A few of the cities and all but one of the villages (Burwell) are included in the precincts or townships and thus constitute secondary divisions of the counties. Table 4 shows the population of each county by election precincts or townships, cities, and villages for the last three censuses. The population of the cities and villages not organized independently is shown in italics under the population of the townships or precincts in which the places are respectively situated. Italics are also used for the figures representing the population at censuses prior to 1930 of cities which have recently been made independent, to indicate that the figures are not to be added in with the precincts or townships and other independent cities to make the county total (having already been counted once). Ten of the cities and one village are coextensive with the township or precinct. Where an incorporated place occupies parts of two or more townships or precincts, its population is given in connection with the presentation for the first division.

Changes in the boundaries of precincts or townships and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "precincts" shown in the table are election precincts. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920) Vol. I, Table 53]

NEVADA

POPULATION—NEVADA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Nevada was organized as a Territory in 1861 and was admitted to the Union as the thirty-sixth State in October, 1864. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 91,058, which represents an increase of 13,651, or 17.6 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 109,821 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 0.8, as compared with 0.7 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Nevada from 1860, the year in which its area was first enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF NEVADA: 1860 TO 1930

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Nevada is shown by counties, election precincts, townships, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—Table 2 shows the population of Reno, the only city in Nevada with more than 10,000 inhabitants, from 1870, the first census subsequent to its incorporation, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 17 counties of Nevada from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 10 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, and 7 show a decrease. No new counties have been organized since 1920, and there have been no changes in county boundaries.

² Clark organized from part of Lincoln in 1900.

³ Part of Esmeralda taken to form Mineral in 1911, and part annexed to Nye in 1913.

⁴ Part of Humboldt taken to form Pershing in 1910.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 4 shows the population of each county by election precincts, townships, cities, and towns for the last two censuses. The primary divisions of the counties are of two kinds, 5 counties being divided into townships, and 11 into election precincts; one county has both townships and precincts. These townships or election precincts include the secondary divisions which are incorporated as cities or towns. The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the townships or precincts in which the places are respectively located. Where a city occupies parts of two or more election precincts, the total population is given in connection with the presentation for the first precinct. The total population of the city of Yerington, which includes parts of two precincts, is presented in roman type, followed by the precincts in italic type.

Changes in the boundaries of the townships and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930 AND 1920

[The "precincts" shown in the table are election precincts. Because of numerous changes in boundaries of the counties and minor civil divisions between 1910 and 1920, no comparative figures for 1910 are given. Counties showing totals, but no other comparative figures for 1920, have been redistricted since 1920]

NEW HAMPSHIRE

POPULATION—NEW HAMPSHIRE

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—New Hampshire was one of the original thirteen States. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 465,293, which represents an increase of 22,210, or 5.0 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 9,031 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 51.5, as compared with 49.1 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of New Hampshire from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase in each decade.

Counties, cities, and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of New Hampshire is shown by counties, cities, towns, and other minor civil divisions, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are nine cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. The figures shown for the earlier censuses represent, in many cases, the population of the town prior to its incorporation as a city. Manchester, the largest city, first attained a population of 10,000 between 1840 and 1850. Rochester is the only city added to this group following the census of 1920.

NEW JERSEY

POPULATION—NEW JERSEY

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—New Jersey was one of the original thirteen States. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 4,041,334, which represents an increase of 885,434, or 28.1 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 7,514 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 537.8, as compared with 420.0 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of New Jersey from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of New Jersey is shown by counties, cities, townships, and other minor civil divisions, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 55 cities, towns, boroughs, or villages in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these incorporated places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. Newark, the largest city in the State, had a population of 442,337 which represents an increase of 27,813, or 6.7 per cent, since the census of 1920. Jersey City, the second in rank, had a population of 316,715. The next four cities, each of which had more than 100,000 inhabitants, are Paterson, Trenton, Camden, and Elizabeth. Six other cities and one town had populations between 50,000 and 100,000. These places, in the order of their population, are Bayonne, East Orange, Atlantic City, Passaic, Hoboken, Union City, and Irvington.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 21 counties of New Jersey from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. All of the counties of New Jersey have increased in population during the past decade. No new counties have been organized since 1920, but a part of Gloucester County was annexed to Camden County in 1926, and part of Monmouth County to Ocean in 1928.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of New Jersey are the townships, cities, towns, and boroughs, with one village (South Orange). In addition to these independent primary divisions, there are two villages (Ridgefield Park and Ridgewood) each coextensive with the township in which it is located. Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, cities, towns, boroughs, and villages for the last three censuses.

Changes in the boundaries of townships and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

NEW MEXICO

POPULATION—NEW MEXICO

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—The Territory of New Mexico was organized in 1850 from the area now comprising the greater parts of the States of New Mexico and Arizona, together with small portions of Colorado and Nevada. In 1863, with the organization of the Arizona Territory, the boundaries of New Mexico were established as at present. In January, 1912, New Mexico was admitted to the Union as the forty-seventh State. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 423,317, which represents an increase of 62,967, or 17.5 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 122,503 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 3.5, as compared with 2.9 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of New Mexico from 1850, the year in which the Territory of New Mexico was first separately enumerated; to 1930, together with the increase or decrease during each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF NEW MEXICO: 1850 TO 1930

[A minus sign (—) denotes decrease]

CENSUS YEAR	Population	INCREASE OVER PRECEDING CENSUS
		Number	Per cent
1930.....	423,317	62,967	17.5

¹ Total for 1860 includes population (6,482) of Arizona County, organized as the Territory of Arizona in 1863. The population of the remainder of New Mexico Territory in 1860 was thus 87,034. Making allowance for this reduction in area, the total for 1870 would represent an increase of 4,840, or 5.6 per cent, as compared with 1860. No population was returned for Arizona County in 1850.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of New Mexico is shown by counties, election precincts, cities, towns, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are three cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Albuquerque, the largest city in New Mexico, has a population of 26,570, which represents an increase of 11,413, or 75.3 per cent, over its population in 1920. Santa Fe, the capital and second city in the State, has 11,176 inhabitants and its increase during the past decade was 54.4 per cent. Roswell, the third city, has 11,173 inhabitants and its increase was 58.9 per cent.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 31 counties of New Mexico from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area in each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Two of these counties, Catron and Harding, have been organized since 1920 from parts of other counties. Of the 26 counties whose boundaries have remained unchanged since 1920, 19 increased in population and 7 show decreases.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of New Mexico are known as election precincts. The election precincts include the secondary divisions which are incorporated as cities, towns, and villages. Table 4 shows the population of each county by precincts, cities, towns, and villages for the last three censuses. The population of the cities, towns, and villages is shown in italics under the population of the precincts in which the places are respectively located. Where an incorporated place occupies two or more precincts or parts of precincts the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first precinct.

Changes in the boundaries of election precincts and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[The "precincts" shown in the table are election precincts. Counties showing no comparative figures have been organized at some time between the censuses, or have been redistricted. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930 in counties not redistricted, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 53.]

POPULATION—NEW YORK

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—New York was one of the original thirteen States. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 12,588,066, which represents an increase of 2,202,839, or 21.2 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 47,654 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 264.2, as compared with 217.9 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of New York from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6), the population of New York is shown by counties, towns, cities, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 54 cities and 15 villages in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. New York, the largest city in the State and the largest city in the United States, had a population of 6,930,446, which represents an increase of 1,310,398, or 23.3 per cent, over its population in 1920. Buffalo, the second city in the State, had 573,076 inhabitants, and its increase during the past decade was 66,301, or 13.1 per cent. Other cities of more than 100,000, in the order of population, are Rochester, Syracuse, Yonkers, Albany, and Utica. In the population group between 50,000 and 100,000 there are six cities—Schenectady, Binghamton, Niagara Falls, Troy, Mount Vernon, and New Rochelle. Twelve cities and villages first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

³ Part of Essex annexed to Hamilton and part of Hamilton annexed in 1915.

⁴ Less than one-tenth of 1 per cent increase.

⁵ Parts of Queens annexed to Kings in 1915 and 1925; part of Kings annexed to Queens in 1925; part of Queens taken to form Nassau in 1899 and part annexed to Nassau in 1928.

⁶ Part of Ontario annexed to Livingston in 1922.

⁷ Part of Westchester annexed to New York in 1895; part of New York taken to form Bronx in 1914.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of New York are the towns and independent cities. Five counties, New York, Kings, Queens, Bronx, and Richmond, are included in the city of New York. Each of these counties is coextensive with one of the boroughs of that city. The towns include the secondary divisions, all of which are incorporated as villages, with the exception of one city (Sherrill, in Oneida County), which constitutes a secondary division. Table 4 shows the population of each county by towns, cities, and villages for the last three censuses. The population of the secondary divisions is shown in italics under the population of the towns in which the places are respectively located. Where a village occupies two or more towns, or parts of towns, the total population of the village is given in connection with the presentation for the first town. Italics are also used for the figures representing the population at censuses prior to 1930 of cities which have recently been made independent, to indicate that the figures are not to be added in with the counties and other independent cities to make the State total (having already been counted once).

Changes in the boundaries of towns and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

⁴⁴ WESTCHESTER.—Part of Rye village, Rye town, annexed to Harrison town in 1926; parts of Ossining town to Ossining village in 1927 and 1929. Buchanan village incorporated in 1928. The population shown for White Plains city for 1910 includes population (1,141) of that part of White Plains town later consolidated with White Plains city.

Incorporated places.—Table 5 shows the population of the incorporated places (cities and villages) in New York in 1930 and 1920. In this table the places are arranged in alphabetical order, each followed by the name of the county in which the city or village is located. Under the population of the city of New York, the five boroughs are separately listed, each followed by the name of the county with which it is coextensive. In Table 6 the population of the more important places is presented by wards, or, in the case of New York city, by assembly districts.

POPULATION—NORTH CAROLINA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—North Carolina was one of the original thirteen States. Its population, on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 3,170,276, which represents an increase of 611,153, or 23.9 per cent, as compared with the population of January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 48,740 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 65.0, as compared with 52.5 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of North Carolina from 1790, the year of the first Federal census, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of North Carolina is shown by counties, townships, and incorporated cities, towns, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 21 places in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. Charlotte, with a population of 82,675, is now the largest city in North Carolina. Winston-Salem, with 75,274 inhabitants, ranks second. Greensboro is now in third place with a population of 53,569, representing an increase of 33,708, or 169.7 per cent, over its population in 1920. Durham and Asheville now rank as fourth and fifth cities in the State. Seven places in the State, of which the largest is Fayetteville, first attained a population of 10,000 between 1920 and 1930.

³ Winston and Salem consolidated as Winston-Salem between 1910 and 1920. Figures shown for 1910, 1900, 1890, and 1880 represent combined population of Winston and Salem; population given for 1870 is that of Winston alone.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 100 counties of North Carolina from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 95 increased in population between 1920 and 1930, and only 5 show decreases. No new counties have been organized since 1920, but a part of McDowell County was annexed to Buncombe County in 1925, and a part of Yadkin County was annexed to Forsyth County in 1927.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 4 shows the population of each county by townships, cities, and incorporated towns and villages for the last three censuses. The primary divisions of the North Carolina counties are known as townships. These townships include the secondary divisions which are incorporated as cities, towns, or villages. The population of the cities, towns, and villages is shown in italics under the population of the township in which each respective place is located. Where a city or incorporated town occupies two or more townships, or parts of townships, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first township.

Changes in the boundaries of townships and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.
