POPULATION—WISCONSIN

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—The Territory of Wisconsin, including the area now constituting the States of Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, and parts of North and South Dakota, was organized in 1836. The part lying west of the Mississippi River was organized as the Territory of Iowa in 1838, and in May, 1848, Wisconsin, with boundaries as at present, was admitted to the Union as the thirtieth State. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 2,939,006, which represents an increase of 306,939, or 11.7 per cent, as compared with its population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 55,256 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 53.2, as compared with 47.6 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Wisconsin from 1840, the year in which the Territory of Wisconsin was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each decade.

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Wisconsin is shown by counties, towns, cities, and villages, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 26 cities and 1 village in Wisconsin which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these places the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease during each decade. Milwaukee, the largest city in the State, had a population of 578,249, which represents an increase of 121,102, or 26.5 per cent, over its population in 1920. Racine is the second largest city in the State, with 67,542 inhabitants. The next four cities in this group, in the order of their population, are Madison, Kenosha, Oshkosh, and La Crosse.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the 71 counties in Wisconsin from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. Of these counties, 35 show an increase between 1920 and 1930, while 36 show decreases in population. No new counties have been organized, and there have been no changes in county boundaries since 1920.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Wisconsin are the towns, cities, and incorporated villages. There are no secondary divisions. Where a city or village is located partly in one county and partly in another, the part in a given county is presented in the regular way as a primary division of that county, and, to make the presentation complete, the population is also shown, in italics, for the part outside that county and for the city or village as a whole. Table 4 shows the population of each county by towns, cities, and villages for the last three censuses.

Changes in the boundaries of towns and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4; for changes between 1910 and 1920, reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 53.

WYOMING

POPULATION—WYOMING

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the State.—Wyoming was organized as a Territory in 1868 and was admitted to the Union as the forty-fourth State in 1890. Its population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 225,565, which represents an increase of 31,163, or 16.0 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total land area of the State, as shown in Table 3, is 97,548 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 2.3, as compared with 2.0 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Wyoming from 1870, the year in which its area was first separately enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase in each decade.

TABLE 1.—POPULATION OF WYOMING: 1870 TO 1930

Counties and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 6) the population of Wyoming is shown by counties, election districts, cities, and towns, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are 2 cities in the State which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase or decrease in each decade. Cheyenne, the capital and largest city in the State, had a population in 1930 of 17,361, which represents an increase of 3,532, or 25.5 per cent, over its population in 1920. Casper, the second city, had 16,619 inhabitants.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the counties of Wyoming from 1890 to 1930, together with the land area of each county and its population per square mile in 1930. There are 23 counties in the State, of which 2 have been organized since 1920. Of the 18 counties whose boundaries have remained unchanged since 1920, 12 increased in population, while 6 show a decrease. Natrona County, which includes the city of Casper, shows the largest increase, both in number and in rate. Yellowstone National Park, the greater part of which is located in this State, is independent of any county organization.

⁸ Goshen and Platte organized from parts of Laramie in 1913.

⁹ Organized from parts of Big Horn, Fremont, and Park in 1913.

¹⁰ Parts taken to form part of Big Horn in 1897.

¹¹ Lincoln organized from part of Uinta in 1913, and parts taken to form Teton and part of Sublette in 1923.

¹² Organized from part of Big Horn in 1911 (act providing for organization passed in 1909); part taken to form part of Hot Springs in 1913. Part annexed to Yellowstone National Park, and part of Yellowstone National Park annexed to Park County in 1920.

¹³ Organized from parts of Fremont and Lincoln Counties in 1923.

¹⁴ Organized from part of Lincoln County in 1923.

¹⁵ Part taken to form Lincoln in 1913.

¹⁶ Organized from part of Crook in 1891. Part taken to form part of Campbell in 1913.

¹⁷ Yellowstone National Park, total population 253 in 1930, geographically located within limits of Idaho, Montana, and Wyoming. Part annexed to Park County, and part of Park County annexed to Yellowstone National Park in 1920.

*Less than one-tenth of 1 per cent decrease.

Minor civil divisions.—The primary divisions of the counties of Wyoming are known as election districts. The election districts include the secondary divisions which are incorporated as cities and towns. Table 4 shows the population of each county by election districts, cities, and towns, for the last two censuses. The population of the cities and towns is shown in italics under the population of the election districts in which the places are respectively located. Where a city or incorporated town occupies two or more districts or parts of districts, the total population of the place is given in connection with the presentation for the first district.

Changes in the boundaries of election districts and incorporated places between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 4.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930 AND 1920

[The "districts" shown in the table are election districts. Because of numerous changes in boundaries of counties and election districts, no comparative figures for 1910 are given. Counties showing no comparative figures have been organized at some time between the censuses, or have been redistricted. For other changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes]

POPULATION—ALASKA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the Territory.—Alaska was purchased by the United States from the Russian Government in March, 1867. The first enumeration of its population by the United States was made in 1880 and consisted of a canvass of all accessible settlements, supplemented by estimates, based mainly upon records and personal knowledge of missionary priests, for those regions which could not be visited. A similar practice was followed in 1890, but the area actually canvassed in that year was larger than that visited in 1880, and at each subsequent census the enumerations have been more nearly complete and accurate. After a careful consideration of the unusual climatic conditions, the wide dispersion of small population over large areas, and the inaccessibility of certain regions, October 1, 1929, was decided upon as the date of the enumeration of Alaska instead of April 1, 1930, the official date of enumeration of the Fifteenth Census. Authority for this change for commencing the enumeration in Alaska to a date prior to April 1, 1930, is contained in section 6 of the act of Congress providing for the Fifteenth Census, approved June 18, 1929. The population of Alaska on October 1, 1929, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 59,278, which represents an increase of 4,242, or 7.7 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The gross area of Alaska, land and water, is 586,400 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 is one-tenth of 1, or practically the same as in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Alaska from 1880, the year in which its area was first enumerated, to 1930, together with the increase during each census period.

Judicial divisions, towns, villages, and minor civil divisions.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 4), the population of Alaska is shown by judicial divisions, recording districts, incorporated towns, unincorporated towns and villages, and the United States Army post, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Judicial divisions.—Alaska has no county organization, but in 1909, for court purposes, the Territory was divided into 4 "judicial divisions," which are treated for census purposes as equivalent to county areas.

Table 2 shows the population of these 4 judicial divisions from 1910 to 1930, together with the increase or decrease in each decade. Changes in boundaries since 1920 are indicated by footnotes at the end of Table 2; for changes between 1910 and 1920 reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 54.

¹ Returned as districts in 1920.² Taken as of October 1, 1929.³ Parts of Second and Third Judicial Divisions annexed to Fourth Judicial Division since 1920.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 3 shows the population of each judicial division by recording districts, towns, and villages. Following the precedent of previous censuses of Alaska, the larger and more important unincorporated towns and villages, and the United States Army Post (Chilkoot Barracks) have been returned separately and are shown, together with the incorporated towns, under the recording districts in which each respective place is located. The abbreviation "(Inc.)" is placed after each incorporated town. Those unincorporated villages for which no population is given for 1920 and 1910 have not previously been reported.

The Second, Third, and Fourth Judicial Divisions were redistricted between 1910 and 1920; in these divisions for 1910, therefore, no figures are shown in Table 3 for the recording districts.

Changes in the boundaries of recording districts between 1920 and 1930 are indicated by footnotes on Table 3; for changes between 1910 and 1920 reference may be made to the Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Volume I, Table 54.

[The "districts" shown in the table are recording districts. Comparative figures are shown for 1910 and 1920 wherever available. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 54.]

AMERICAN SAMOA

POPULATION—AMERICAN SAMOA

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Total population.—The islands of American Samoa were taken over by the United States in 1900. An Executive order, dated February 19, 1900, placed the Samoan group of islands under the control of the Department of the Navy for a naval station. In conformity with the act of Congress providing for the Fifteenth Census, the census of American Samoa was taken under the supervision of the governor of Samoa in accordance with plans prescribed or approved by the Director of the Census. The population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 10,055, which represents an increase of 1,999, or 24.8 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total area of the group of islands comprising American Samoa is 76 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 132.3, as compared with 106 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of American Samoa at the Federal census of April 1, 1930, the Federal census January 1, 1920, and the local censuses of 1912 and 1900, together with the increase between censuses.

Minor civil divisions.—For administrative purposes American Samoa is divided into Manua District, Eastern District of Tutuila, Western District of Tutuila, and Swains Island. The administrative districts are divided into 14 counties. The population of the counties is reported by villages. Swains Island was annexed in 1925.

GUAM

POPULATION—GUAM

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Total population.—The island of Guam was ceded by Spain to the United States December 10, 1898, but was not enumerated at a Federal decennial census until 1920. Previous enumerations had been made, however, under the direction of the governor. In conformity with the act of Congress providing for the Fifteenth Census, the census of Guam was taken under the supervision of the governor in accordance with plans prescribed or approved by the Director of the Census. The population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 18,509, which represents an increase of 5,234, or 39.4 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total area of the island of Guam, as shown in Table 2, is 206 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 89.8, as compared with 64.4 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of Guam taken at the Federal censuses of 1930 and 1920, and the population of 1910 and 1901 as reported by the naval governor, together with the increase between the censuses.

² Includes native men enlisted in United States Navy, but excludes United States naval station personnel, numbering 309.

³ Census taken by naval governor.

Table 2 shows the area and the population per square mile of the island of Guam, and the 1930 population of the eight municipalities created by decree of the governor on March 21, 1930. No comparison with previous censuses has been made, the 1920 census having been reported by districts, barrios, and towns.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 3 shows the population of the eight municipalities of Guam by towns and barrios, where such divisions exist. The population of the Naval Reservations, including the personnel of the United States ships stationed in Guam, has not been distributed in this table to the various municipalities, but is shown separately at the end of the table. Comparative figures for 1920 are given for barrios and towns where available. The municipalities, having been established since 1920, show no comparable figures for the previous census.

HAWAII

POPULATION—HAWAII

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Population of the Territory.—Hawaii, by voluntary action of its people, ceded its sovereignty to the United States in 1898 and was organized as a Territory on June 14, 1900. The population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 368,336, which represents an increase of 112,424, or 43.9 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The total area of the Territory, as shown in Table 3, is 6,407 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 57.5, as compared with 39.9 in 1920.

Table 1 shows the population of the Territory of Hawaii as reported at the last four Federal censuses, and at the census of 1890, taken by the Hawaiian government, together with the increase in each decade. Censuses prior to 1890 were taken at irregular intervals. In 1832, the earliest census, the population recorded by the Hawaiian government was 130,313; in 1853 it was 73,138; and in 1872 the records show only 56,897 inhabitants.

Counties, cities, minor civil divisions, and islands.—In the tables which follow (Tables 2 to 5) the population of Hawaii is shown by counties, cities, minor civil divisions, and by islands, with some comparative figures from previous censuses.

Cities of 10,000 or more.—There are only two urban places in the Territory which had a population of 10,000 or more in 1930. Table 2 shows for these cities the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the increase during each decade. The City and County of Honolulu is a municipal corporation; however, a large portion of the municipality being rural, the statute specifies that for statistical purposes the designation "City of Honolulu" shall mean the same territory as Honolulu district. The figures in the following table for Honolulu city are, therefore, for Honolulu district.

Counties.—Table 3 shows the population of the three counties in Hawaii, and of the city and county of Honolulu, which occupies the status of a county, from 1890 to 1930, together with the area and the population per square mile in 1930. Honolulu, formerly reported as a county, has been organized as a municipality under the name of "the City and County of Honolulu," and Kalawao County (leper settlement), reported separately in 1920, is now a part of Maui County.

² Includes area (1.5 square miles) of Midway Island. Area for Territory changed from 6,449 in 1920 by survey.

³ Totals for 1920, 1910, and 1900 include population (687,785, and 1,177, respectively) of Kalawao County, now included in Maui County.

⁴ Organized from Hawaii Island in 1905.

⁵ Organized as Oahu County from Oahu Island in 1905 and Midway Island thereafter annexed; name changed to Honolulu, and organization changed from county to city and county, in 1907.

⁶ Organized from Kauai and Niihau Islands in 1905.

⁷ Organized from Kahoolawe, Lanai, and Maui Islands and part of Molokai Island in 1905; balance of Molokai Island (Kalawao County) included in Maui County in 1930.

Minor civil divisions.—Table 4 shows the population of each county and the City and County of Honolulu by minor civil divisions, and unincorporated towns and villages. In 1925, by legislative act, the Territory of Hawaii was divided into 6 representative districts, each made up of numbered voting precincts. These precincts are the units by which the population is reported in 1930. In prior censuses the population has been reported by judicial districts; therefore, in order to present comparable figures for areas smaller than the county, the old judicial districts are also shown in this table. Each precinct or group of precincts having been created wholly within the boundaries of a judicial district, the 134 precincts are grouped under the respective 27 judicial districts which comprise them. The judicial districts are alphabetically arranged under representative districts. Midway Island is placed at the end of the City and County of Honolulu, under Representative District 5. The population of each unincorporated town or village is shown in italics under the precinct in which it is located. Where a district occupies part of two representative districts the total population of the district is given in connection with the presentation of the first representative district; and the total population of Hilo city, located in seven precincts, is given under the first precinct.

TABLE 4.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[Population returned by representative districts and voting precincts, established in 1925, and by old judicial districts. The precincts are grouped and totaled by judicial districts for which comparable figures for prior censuses are available. The judicial districts are grouped and totaled by the representative district or districts forming each county. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1920 and 1930, see footnotes; for those between 1910 and 1920, see Reports of the Fourteenth Census (1920), Vol. I, Table 64]

¹ HAWAII COUNTY.—Hilo returned as an incorporated city in 1920, and as a town in 1910. Part of Hilo town incorrectly returned in 1910 as in North Hilo district; corrected figures given for North and South Hilo districts for that year.

² HONOLULU, CITY AND COUNTY OF.—Organization changed from county to city and county since 1920. Honolulu district usually considered Honolulu city. Wahiawa district organized from parts of Waialua and Waianae districts in 1913; 1910 population of Waialua and Waianae districts is exclusive of population of parts taken to form Wahiawa district.

PANAMA CANAL ZONE

POPULATION—PANAMA CANAL ZONE

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Total population.—The United States acquired sovereignty over the territory now comprising the Canal Zone, by a treaty of November 18, 1903. In conformity with the act of Congress providing for the Fifteenth Census, the census of the Panama Canal Zone was taken under the supervision of the governor in accordance with plans prescribed or approved by the Director of the Census. The population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 39,467, which represents an increase of 16,609, or 72.7 per cent, as compared with the population on January 1, 1920. The gross area of the Panama Canal Zone, land and water, is 549 square miles; the land area, as shown in Table 2, being 379 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 104.1, as compared with 64 in 1920.¹

Table 1 shows the population of the Canal Zone as reported at the last two Federal censuses, and at the census of April 1, 1912, taken under the supervision of the governor, together with the increase in each period.

Minor civil divisions.—For purposes of enumeration, the Canal Zone was divided into two major areas, corresponding to the two divisions under the district court, Balboa District and Cristobal District. In each of these two major divisions the enumeration was made by principal towns, Army and Navy posts, institutions, and rural areas embracing all territories not otherwise specifically designated.

The Balboa District extends from the Pacific Ocean to the south bank of the Chagres River, and to the south shore of Gatun Lake from the north end of the Gaillard Cut to the Panama boundary on the east bank of the Rio Pescado. It includes the Alhajuela area, together with the west bank of the Chagres River down to the east bank of the Quebrado Madronal.

The Cristobal division is that part of the Canal Zone extending from the Caribbean Sea to the boundary of the Balboa District.

Table 3, which follows, shows the population of the Panama Canal Zone by court districts, and by towns, Army and Navy posts, institutions, and rural areas.

PORTO RICO

POPULATION—PORTO RICO

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Total population.—The island of Porto Rico was formally surrendered by Spain to the United States in October, 1898, and by the Treaty of Paris, signed December 10 of the same year, at the close of the Spanish-American War, was ceded to the United States, together with Vieques, Culebra, and other small adjacent islands.

According to the Fifteenth Census, taken as of April 1, 1930, the population of Porto Rico is 1,543,913, which represents an increase of 244,104, or 18.8 per cent, since 1920. The following summary shows the population of Porto Rico as enumerated at the Federal decennial censuses of 1930, 1920, and 1910, at the special census taken under the direction of the War Department in 1899, and at nine earlier censuses taken at irregular intervals between 1765 and 1887:

Municipalities.—Porto Rico is divided, for the purpose of local government, into 77 districts, called municipalities. Each of the islands of Culebra and Vieques constitutes an entire municipality, and the remaining small adjacent islands form parts of municipalities. (See Table 3.) Of these 77 municipalities, only one (Cabano) has been organized from part of another since 1920.

Density of population.—The gross area of Porto Rico, land and water, including the adjacent and dependent islands, is 3,435 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1930 was 449.5, as against 378.4 in 1920 and 325.5 in 1910.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which Porto Rico's municipalities are divided are the barrios. Cities and towns, which occupy the closely settled area, have no form of government distinct from that of the municipality to which they belong. In the municipality of San Juan all the barrios are urban in character, the city being coextensive with the municipality. In most of the smaller municipalities, a single barrio, usually designated as "pueblo," constitutes the town settlement. In other municipalities the town is composed of two or more barrios.

In addition to the above-mentioned minor civil divisions, there are in the municipality of San Juan one military reserve and one naval reserve (radio station), and a naval radio station is located in the municipality of Cayey.

Table 4 shows the population of Porto Rico by municipalities and barrios. Under the name of each municipality is first given that of the town from which the municipality is named, together with the names of the barrios, if more than one, which it comprises. The remaining barrios follow in alphabetical order.

Principal places.—Porto Rico has two cities, of which San Juan, with a population of 114,715, ranks first, and Ponce, with 53,430 inhabitants, is second in size. In addition, there are 75 towns. (See Table 5, p. 1263.)

The following summary shows for each city or town having a population of 5,000 or more inhabitants in 1930, the population at each of the last three censuses and the percentage of increase:

VIRGIN ISLANDS OF THE UNITED STATES

POPULATION—VIRGIN ISLANDS OF THE UNITED STATES

NUMBER AND DISTRIBUTION OF INHABITANTS

Total population.—That group of the Virgin Islands formerly known as the Danish West Indies was acquired by the United States by purchase from Denmark, the formal transfer of possession taking place on March 31, 1917. In conformity with the act of Congress providing for the Fifteenth Census, the census of the Virgin Islands of the United States was taken under the supervision of the governor in accordance with plans prescribed or approved by the Director of the Census. The population on April 1, 1930, according to the Fifteenth Census, was 22,012, which represents a decrease of 4,039, or 15.5 per cent, as compared with the population shown by the special Federal census taken November 1, 1917. The total area of the group of islands comprising the Virgin Islands of the United States is 133 square miles. The average number of inhabitants per square mile in 1930 was 165.5, as compared with 196.7 in 1917.¹

Table 1 shows the population of the Virgin Islands as reported at the Federal censuses of April 1, 1930, and November 1, 1917, and at the several censuses taken by the Danish Government from 1835 to 1911, together with the increase or decrease between each census.
