CHAPTER 2.—COLOR OR RACE, NATIVITY, AND PARENTAGE

INTRODUCTION

The classification of the population of the United States by color or race distinguishes in many cases only three main groups, namely, white, Negro, and "Other races." The "Other race" group includes Mexican, Indian, Chinese, Japanese, Filipino, Hindu, Korean, Hawaiian, Malay, Siamese, and Samoan, the last three represented by less than 100 persons each.

In classifying the population by nativity, all persons born in continental United States or in any of the outlying territories or possessions are regarded as native and all other persons as foreign born. In the classification by parentage there are three primary groups, as follows: (1) Native parentage, that is, having both parents born in the United States or in the outlying possessions; (2) Foreign parentage, that is, having both parents foreign born; (3) Mixed parentage, that is, having one parent native and the other foreign born. In many of the tables persons of foreign parentage and those of mixed parentage are combined into one group designated "Foreign or mixed parentage." Conversely, in a few tables the mixed parentage group is separated into two parts, designated (a) Father foreign, and (b) Mother foreign.

The distinction as to parentage is generally confined to the native white population, so that in most of the tables there are five principal classes: (1) Native white of native parentage; (2) Native white of foreign or mixed parentage; (3) Foreign-born white; (4) Negro; (5) Other races. The number of classes is expanded to six in many cases by the separate presentation of native white of foreign parentage and native white of mixed parentage. The group designated "Other races," being relatively unimportant in most areas, is frequently omitted from the tables altogether. Figures are presented, however, for this group and for its constituent races—Mexicans, Indians, Chinese, Japanese, etc.—in separate tables containing such details in each case as the number of persons in the group seems to justify.

Statistics of color or race, nativity, and parentage are presented in this chapter for continental United States, by States, and for cities of 25,000 or more. Less detailed statistics are presented for counties and townships, and for incorporated places of 1,000 or more, in Volume III of the Fifteenth Census Reports on Population; and statistics for the outlying territories and possessions enumerated at the Fifteenth Census are presented in a volume entitled "Outlying Territories and Possessions."

The 1930 figures for the various color or race groups are shown by nativity in Table 1.

Correction for 1870.—The corrected figures for 1870 in Table 4 and for the decades 1860 to 1870 and 1870 to 1880 in Table 5 are based on estimates of the true population in 1870, the census taken in that year having been generally deficient in the Southern States. The number of omissions in these States in 1870 is estimated to have been 1,260,000, comprising 748,000 whites and 512,000 Negroes. (See Reports of the Eleventh Census, Population, Pt. I, pp. xi, xii, and xvi.)

White population.—The proportion of whites in the total population, which was a little over 80 per cent in 1790, has increased at each succeeding census, except for a slight decline in 1810 as compared with 1800 and a decrease from 89.0 per cent (for the white population excluding Mexicans) in 1920 to 88.7 per cent in 1930 (see Table 4). This last decline is the result of a very considerable influx of Mexicans between 1920 and 1930. If Mexicans had been classed as white in 1930, the proportion would have been slightly higher than in 1920.

Accepting the estimate for 1870 as approximately correct, each decade since 1790, except the decade 1910 to 1920, has shown for the white population a numerical increase greater than for the decade immediately preceding; and the percentage of increase for the white population has exceeded that for the Negro population in every decade since 1810 (see Table 5).

In considering the growth of the white population it must be kept in mind that in the case of only one of the four nativity and parentage classes is the increase due in any measure to the excess of births over deaths within the class itself. The number of natives of native parentage is increased in part by the children born to natives of native parentage and in part by the children of the natives of foreign or mixed parentage; the number of natives of mixed parentage is increased by the children of intermarriages between the native and the foreign born; the number of natives of foreign parentage, by the children born to immigrants after their arrival in this country; and the number of foreign born, by immigration.

Of the four classes of whites, therefore, the natives of native parentage constitute the only one whose increase is affected in any degree by its own reproductivity, since the children born in this country to each of the other classes belong to a class different from that to which their parents belong (except that in some cases one parent of a native of mixed parentage is also a native of mixed parentage). While the increase in the number of native whites of native parentage must, so long as there is any element of foreign birth or parentage in the population, necessarily exceed the natural increase by excess of births over deaths within this class, the numerical increase of any of the other classes may or may not exceed the natural increase which would result if the children were included in the same class with the parents. The numerical increases within the several nativity and parentage classes, therefore, bear no specific relationship to the natural increase.

The 1930 figures for the white population classified by nativity and parentage are summarized in Table 2. For comparative figures for earlier censuses, see Table 6.

TABLE 2.—WHITE POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES BY NATIVITY AND PARENTAGE: 1930

Negro population.—The distinction between white and colored is the only racial classification which has been carried through all the 15 censuses. There is some doubt as to whether the small number of taxed Indians were counted with the white or with the colored population prior to 1860.

With adjustment for the undercount of Negroes in 1870, the proportion of Negroes in the total population has decreased at each census since 1810. The rate of increase in the Negro population has also shown a downward trend since 1810, but the rates, even with adjustment for 1870, show fluctuations which are difficult to explain. For example, the rate of increase dropped from 22.0 per cent (adjusted) in the decade 1870 to 1880 to 13.5 per cent between 1880 and 1890, and then rose to 18.0 per cent in the following decade.

In the face of this fluctuation in the decennial rate of increase, the Census Bureau has admitted the possibility of an undercount of Negroes in 1890. A similar fluctuation in the rate of increase was that from 11.2 between 1900 and 1910 to 6.5 in the decade 1910 to 1920, followed by a rate of 13.6 between 1920 and 1930. This fluctuation is even greater than that of 30 years earlier, and suggests the probability of an undercount of Negroes in 1920, as well as in 1890. It would be a mistake, however, to assume that the entire fluctuation in the latter period was due to an undercount. The decade 1910 to 1920 included the years of the World War, with its consequent disorganization of the Negro population through military service and labor migrations, and also the influenza epidemic of 1918 and 1919. The disorganization of the War and migration period would tend to decrease births, and the epidemic probably increased the number of deaths of Negroes within the decade by at least 100,000. The number of deaths in the decade 1910 to 1919 of Negroes living at the census of 1910, on the assumption that the death rate of Negroes in the registration area was typical of that for Negroes in the United States as a whole, was 1,754,956, as compared with 1,522,665 Negro deaths similarly calculated for the decade 1920 to 1929 in the population living at the census of 1920. A comparison by five-year age periods of the Negro population in 1910, 1920, and 1930, arranging these periods by groups of birth years and allowing for calculated deaths in each birth-year group, would indicate a shortage of about 150,000 in the Negro enumeration of 1920, as compared with the enumerations of 1910 and 1930. This shortage in the enumeration is in addition to the usual shortage of perhaps 100,000 in the enumeration of Negro children under 5 years old. This latter shortage can be shown for every census by comparing the number of children under 5 with the number 10 to 14 in the following census, taking into account deaths within the 10-year period.

The following statement shows the rates of increase in the Negro population for the last six decades, first, as reported, and second, with the adjustments suggested above:

DECADE	As reported	Adjusted
1920–1930	13.6	12.0
1910–1920	6.5	8.0
1900–1910	11.2	11.2
1890–1900	18.0	13.8
1880–1890	13.5	17.6
1870–1880	34.9	22.0

The rapid downward trend in the decennial rate of increase in the Negro population from 1870 to 1920 can only be accounted for by the assumption of a declining birth rate, parallel with the decline which has been recorded for the white race. The Negro death rate apparently remained stationary or declined less rapidly than did the birth rate. In the decade 1920 to 1930, both birth and death registration figures for Negroes are for the first time sufficiently complete to be used as a check on the indicated decennial increase. These figures show that during the decade the Negro death rate declined more rapidly than the Negro birth rate. This offers an explanation of the apparent reversal in the trend of the rate of increase. Whether this reversal is temporary or permanent remains to be seen.

Mexican population.—The Mexican element in the population has increased very rapidly in certain parts of the United States during the past 10 years. By reason of its growing importance, it was given a separate classification in the census returns for 1930, having been included for the most part with the white population at prior censuses. The instructions given to enumerators for making this classification were to the effect that "all persons born in Mexico, or having parents born in Mexico, who are not definitely white, Negro, Indian, Chinese, or Japanese, should be returned as Mexican." Under these instructions, 1,422,533 persons were returned as Mexican in 1930, and 65,968 persons of Mexican birth or parentage were returned as white. Using as a basis the 1920 returns for persons born in Mexico and persons having one or both parents born in Mexico, it has been estimated that there were in that year 700,541 persons who would have been classified as Mexican under the 1930 instructions.[1] Similarly it was estimated that there were included in the white classification in 1910, 367,510 persons who would have been counted as Mexican in 1930.

Indian population.—The census of 1860 was the first at which Indians were distinguished from the other classes, but no enumeration was made of the Indians in Indian Territory or on Indian reservations until 1890. Prior to that time the enumeration of Indians was confined to those found living among the general population of the various States. The returns for Indians are subject to some degree of uncertainty because of the practice of treating as Indians all persons having any trace of Indian blood. Such persons in many cases can not be distinguished by their appearance from pure-blooded white persons, and as a result some of them have doubtless been reported as white at one census and as Indian at another, since the enumerators are not always able to interview directly the persons whom they enumerate but are obliged to secure information regarding them from other persons.

At the census of 1910 a special effort was made to secure a complete enumeration of all persons having any perceptible amount of Indian blood, for the purpose of preparing a special report showing tribal relation, degree of Indian blood, etc.; and it is probable that this resulted in the enumeration as Indian of a considerable number of persons who would ordinarily have been reported as white. In 1920 no special instructions were given to the enumerators on this point, and the returns showed a much smaller number of Indians than in 1910.

In 1930, however, a special effort was again made to secure a complete count of persons of Indian blood, and the enumerators were instructed specifically to return as Indian all persons of mixed white and Indian blood, except where the percentage of Indian blood was very small, or where the person was regarded as white in the community where he lived. The results of this enumeration show 87,960, or 36.0 per cent, more Indians than were returned in 1920, but for reasons already indicated, it seems likely that this figure overstates the actual increase in the number of Indians.

Urban, rural-farm, and rural-nonfarm population.—Urban population, as defined by the Census Bureau, is in general that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, the remainder being classified as rural. In three of the New England States, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island, towns (townships) are classified as urban if they have a population of 2,500 or more and certain urban characteristics; and a few large and densely populated townships in other States are likewise classified, even though not formally incorporated as municipalities.

In addition to the classification of the population as urban and rural, the rural population is further subdivided into rural-farm and rural-nonfarm, on the basis of the replies to a question reading "Does this family live on a farm?" The rural-farm population includes all persons living on farms in the rural areas. The rural-nonfarm or "village" population is made up largely of persons living in small towns or villages both incorporated and unincorporated, though in many areas there are considerable numbers of families living in the open country but not on farms.

The population of the United States distributed by color or race is shown for these urban and rural areas in Table 3.

[1] This estimate is based on the assumption that the ratio between white persons of Mexican birth or parentage and persons who should be classified as "Mexicans" was the same in 1920 as in 1930, when the total number of persons of Mexican origin (1,488,501) comprised 1,422,533 Mexicans and 65,968 white persons of Mexican birth or parentage. The total number of white persons of Mexican birth or parentage in 1920 was 731,559.

Adjusted figures for white population.—The change in the classification of Mexicans introduces many complications into the process of comparing the 1930 figures for the white population and its various subdivisions with the corresponding figures for 1920 and 1910. In order to provide a basis for more satisfactory comparisons, the estimated numbers of Mexicans included in the white classification in 1920 and 1910 have been subtracted from the figures as published for these years and the difference is presented in various tables as an "adjusted" figure for the 1920 and 1910 white population. Data are not available on which to base adjustments for census years prior to 1910, but the number of Mexicans in the United States in 1900 was relatively small. In some of the tables the adjusted figures are presented in the body of the table; in connection with other tables the effect of the adjustment is indicated in a footnote. The adjusted figures for both 1920 and 1910 for all of the classes of the white population are shown in a footnote to Table 6.

[1] Comprises 3,130 Hindus, 1,860 Koreans, 660 Hawaiians, 96 Malays, 18 Siamese, and 6 Samoans.
[2] The white population as classified in 1920 and 1910 included 700,541 and 367,510 persons, respectively (estimated), who would have been classified as Mexican in 1930. If the figures are adjusted by deducting these estimates, the number of white persons in 1920 becomes 94,120,374, or 89.0 per cent of the total, and in 1910, 81,364,447, or 88.5 per cent of the total.
[3] Comprises 2,507 Hindus, 1,224 Koreans, 110 Hawaiians, 19 Malays, 17 Siamese, 6 Samoans, and 2 Maoris.
[4] Comprises 2,545 Hindus, 462 Koreans, and 8 Maoris.
[5] Exclusive of Indians in Indian Territory and on Indian reservations, not enumerated at censuses prior to 1890.
[6] Estimated corrected figures. See explanation in text.

TABLE 13.—PER CENT DISTRIBUTION OF POPULATION BY COLOR, NATIVITY, AND PARENTAGE, BY DIVISIONS AND STATES: 1900 TO 1930

[Percentages for native whites of foreign or mixed parentage, and for foreign-born whites, are based on figures adjusted for Mexicans, as presented for 1920 and 1910 in Table 18. "Other races" for 1920 and 1910 include estimated number of Mexicans. Per cent not shown where less than 0.1]

TABLE 23.—NATIVE AND FOREIGN-BORN POPULATION BY COLOR OR RACE, FOR CITIES OF 100,000 OR MORE: 1930, 1920, AND 1910

[Figures for the white population in 1920 adjusted by deducting the estimated numbers of Mexicans which are shown separately in italics. No adjustment made for 1920 if the number of Mexicans in the city in 1930 was below 100, and no adjustment made for any city in 1910. Per cent not shown where less than 0.1 or where base is less than 100]

TABLE 24.—POPULATION BY COLOR, NATIVITY, AND PARENTAGE, FOR CITIES OF 100,000 OR MORE: 1930 AND 1920

[Figures for 1920 have been adjusted by deducting the estimated number of Mexicans from the white classes and adding them to "Other races." No adjustment made if the number of Mexicans in the city in 1930 was below 100. A minus sign (—) denotes decrease. Per cent not shown where less than 0.1 or where base is less than 100]
