GENERAL

This report presents detailed statistics for the United States and regions for persons by characteristics of the households and families of which they are members. The statistics are based on the 1970 Census of Population. Legal provision for this census, which was conducted as of April 1, 1970, was made in the Act of Congress of August 31, 1954 (amended August 1957), which codified Title 13, United States Code.

A major portion of the information compiled from the 1970 Census of Population appears in Volume I, Characteristics of the Population, which focuses on the presentation of data for States, counties, places, and other areas of the United States. The present report is part of Volume II, Subject Reports, wherein most reports concentrate on the presentation of national and regional data for a particular subject. For a description of Volumes I and II, as well as other elements of the data dissemination program of the 1970 Population and Housing Census, see Appendix E, "Publication and Computer Summary Tape Program."

The content and procedures of the 1970 census were determined after evaluation of the results of the 1960 census, consultation with a wide variety of users of census data, and extensive field pretesting. A number of changes were introduced in 1970 to improve the usefulness of the census results. For the characteristics shown in this report, the changes do not, however, affect to any appreciable extent the comparability of the 1970 data with those for 1960.

More detailed information on the technical and procedural matters covered in the text of this report can be obtained by writing to the Director, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233. Such information will also appear in later reports of the 1970 census.

Organization of the text.—The text consists of this introduction and Appendixes A through E, which appear after the tables. The introduction contains information relating specifically to the principal subject of this report, such as definitions of terms and editing procedures. Appendix A provides general information concerning the presentation of data in this series of reports and the collection and processing procedures of the 1970 census. Appendix B describes the various area classifications (e.g., urban and rural residence, urbanized areas, etc.) and also explains the residence rules used in counting the population. Appendix C provides brief definitions and explanations of subjects covered in cross-classifications in this report and other reports in this series. Appendix D presents information on sources of error in the data, sampling variability, ratio estimation, and editing procedures. Appendix E summarizes the data dissemination program.

Content of the tables.—The tables present data for persons by the composition and social and economic characteristics of the families of which they are members. Among the aspects of family composition presented are presence of children, grandchildren, and other relatives of the head; presence of subfamilies; presence and marital status of parents; and marital history of family heads and married couples.

Social characteristics of families by which families are classified in these tables include age, sex, and educational attainment of head. Economic characteristics of the family include occupation and income of head and chief income recipient in the family, family income, and hours worked by head or chief income recipient.

The tables also give information on household and family status of all persons, including persons not in families, by age, with cross-classifications by sex and marital status for the population 14 years old and over; these tables include detailed type of group quarters for persons in group quarters. Also shown are statistics on selected characteristics of household heads, statistics on characteristics of members of households headed by primary individuals, and statistics on sons and daughters in husband-wife families with all of the wife's children present.

Sample size.—The statistics in this report are based on the 5-percent sample adjusted to represent the total population (see "Data Collection Procedures" in Appendix A). An explanation of the ratio estimation procedure and information on the sampling variability associated with the data are contained in Appendix D.

RELATED MATERIALS

1970 census reports.—Complete-count statistics on household relationship and presence and number of own children in families are presented for the United States in chapter B of Volume I, Characteristics of the Population, Part 1, "United States Summary." In addition, chapter B for each State shows complete-count data on household relationship and presence and number of own children in families for the State, urban and rural parts, counties, standard metropolitan statistical areas, urbanized areas, and selected places. Statistics on household relationship, family composition, and subfamilies, based on the 20-percent sample, appear in chapter C of Volume I. Area detail presented in chapter C is similar to that presented in chapter B. Chapter D of Volume I presents sample statistics on household relationship; families by type and composition, characteristics of head and wife, income, and poverty status; and subfamilies by marital status and number of children for the United States, urban and rural parts, and standard metropolitan statistical areas of 250,000 or more. Chapters B, C, and D were originally published respectively as paperbound Series PC(1)-B reports, General Population Characteristics; Series PC(1)-C reports, General Social and Economic Characteristics; and Series PC(1)-D reports, Detailed Characteristics.

Statistics on relationship to head of household, type of family, and number of own children are also shown for census tracts of 241 standard metropolitan statistical areas and selected adjacent areas in the 1970 Census of Population and Housing, Census Tracts, Series PHC(1).

Reports from earlier censuses.—In the 1960 census reports, data on family composition from a 5-percent sample, cross-classified by most of the characteristics shown in this report, were published in 1960 Census of Population, Volume II, PC(2)-4B, Persons by Family Characteristics. Other subject reports from the 1960 census in which family composition is one of the central subjects are PC(2)-4A, Families; PC(2)-4D, Age at First Marriage; PC(2)-4E, Marital Status; and PC(2)-3A, Women by Number of Children Ever Born. Data on households and families were published for regions, divisions, States, standard metropolitan statistical areas, cities, and counties in 1960 Census of Population, Volume I, Characteristics of the Population, and for census tracts in 1960 Censuses of Population and Housing, Census Tracts, Series PHC(1). Most other reports in Series PC(2) and PC(3) include information on households and families.

In the 1950 census reports, data on number of households, families, and unrelated individuals, based on a complete count, are shown in 1950 Census of Population, Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. Sample data on family status, cross-classified by many of the characteristics shown in this report, are presented in 1950 Census of Population, Volume IV, Part 2A, General Characteristics of Families. Additional statistics on family subjects are presented in nearly all of the special reports in Volume IV of the 1950 Census of Population.

Current Population Survey.—Data on the population by household and family status for the United States are collected regularly and published annually by the Bureau of the Census through its Current Population Survey (CPS). The CPS is a nationwide survey, covering a sample of about 50,000 households. These data are published in Current Population Reports, Series P-20. (For a statement on the comparability of CPS and census data on family status, see the paragraphs on "Comparability with Other Data.")

Unpublished data.—For most of the Volume II reports, statistics in addition to those published in the report are available on a reimbursable basis from computer tape files. Data shown for the United States as a whole are available for regions, divisions, and States, and, in a number of instances, the data for some characteristics were tabulated in greater detail than shown in the reports. Requests for unpublished data, giving a specific description of the figures desired, should be made in writing to the Director, Bureau of the Census, Washington, D.C. 20233. Inquiries concerning unpublished data should be transmitted to the Bureau as soon as possible since tape files are not maintained indefinitely.

DEFINITIONS AND EXPLANATIONS OF PRINCIPAL SUBJECTS

The definitions and explanations below relate only to the principal subjects of this report. Brief definitions of other items that appear in cross-classifications in the tables of this report are presented in Appendix C.

The data on household relationship, family status, and group quarters were derived from answers to question 2

(see facsimile of questionnaire item below) and entries in item B which identified group quarters and occupied and vacant housing units.

The question on household relationship was asked of all persons. The item on type of unit was filled by the enumerator or in the census office for each household.

Household

A household includes all the persons who occupy a group of rooms or a single room which constitutes a housing unit. A group of rooms or single room is regarded as a housing unit when it is occupied as separate living quarters, that is, when the occupants do not live and eat with any other persons in the structure, and when there is either (1) direct access from the outside of the building or through a common hall or (2) complete kitchen facilities for the exclusive use of the occupants of the household.

Family

According to 1970 census definitions, a family consists of a household head and one or more other persons living in the same household who are related to the head by blood, marriage, or adoption; all persons in a household who are related to the head are regarded as members of his (her) family. Not all households contain families, because a household may be composed of a group of unrelated persons or one person living alone.

The classification of families by type is based on the sex and marital status of the head. Families with a head and his wife present are termed "husband-wife families." Families with no spouse of head present are "other families with male head" or "families with female head," depending on the sex of the head.

A "family" has the same meaning in the 1970 census as a "primary family" in the 1960 census. Secondary families were defined in the 1960 census as groups of persons related to each other but unrelated to the household head, such as lodgers, friends, partners, or resident employees. However, the number of such families became so small (95,000 in 1969, according to the Current Population Survey) that the Bureau of the Census decided to include persons in these families in the count of secondary individuals for 1970.

Subfamily

A subfamily is a married couple with or without children, or one parent with one or more single children under 18 years old, living in a household and related to, but not including, the head of the household or his wife. The most common example of a subfamily is a young married couple sharing the home of the husband's or wife's parents. Members of a subfamily are also included among the members of a family. The number of subfamilies, therefore, is not included in the number of families.

Primary and Secondary Individuals

A primary individual is a household head living alone or with nonrelatives only. Examples of primary individuals who have nonrelatives living with them include a single woman who shares her apartment with a partner or housekeeper, and a widow who has a lodger occupying a room in her house.

A secondary individual is (1) a lodger or resident employee living in a household or (2) a resident of group quarters who is not an inmate of an institution.

Relationship to Head of Household, Family, or Subfamily

Detailed categories of relationship to head of household, family, or subfamily are recognized in this report.

Head of household, family, or subfamily.—One person in each household is designated as the "head," that is, the person who is regarded as the head by the members of the household. The same principle applies to families and subfamilies. However, if a married woman living with her husband was reported as the head, her husband was considered the head for the purpose of simplifying the tabulations.

Two types of household heads are distinguished—the head of a family and a primary individual. A family head is a household head living with one or more persons related to him by blood, marriage, or adoption. A primary individual is a household head living alone or with nonrelatives only.

The number of household heads is equal to the number of family heads plus the number of primary individuals.

Wife of household head or family head.—The number of women who are wives of heads in each category is, by definition, the same as the number of husband-wife households or husband-wife families. The classification includes women in common-law marriages as well as women in formal marriages.

Although by definition the number of wives of household or family heads should be equal to the number of heads who are married males, wife present, in practice the numbers may differ because, in the weighting of the sample, husbands and their wives were sometimes given different weights.

Child of head.—A child of a household or family head is a son, daughter, stepchild, or adopted child of the head. Foster children and wards are excluded from the count of the head's children. A child of a subfamily head is a son, daughter, stepchild, or adopted child (of the subfamily head) who is single (never married) and under 18 years old.

The term "sons/daughters" includes, in general, persons 18 years old and over and relates to all children of the head regardless of marital status. The term is used with persons under 18 years old in table 15 in order to show a cross-classification by sex.

Grandchild of head.—This classification comprises family members who are sons, daughters, stepchildren, or adopted children of a child of the family head. In table 2, grandchildren whose parents are present are separately identified by the designation "child of subfamily head."

Parent of head.—This classification comprises parents, including step-parents and adoptive parents, of the family head.

Parent-in-law of head.—This classification comprises parents, including stepparents and adoptive parents, of the spouse of the family head.

Son- or daughter-in-law of head.—This classification comprises the husbands and wives of children of the family head.

Brother or sister of head.—This classification also includes stepbrothers and stepsisters of the family head and brothers and sisters of the head by adoption.

Brother- or sister-in-law of head.—This classification comprises brothers or sisters of the spouse of the family head and the spouses of the family head's brothers and sisters.

Nephew or niece of head.—This classification comprises single (never married) children under 18 years old in subfamilies with parent classified as brother, sister, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law of the family head. Nephews and nieces of the family head could be identified, under the coding structure that was used, only if they were children of subfamily heads classified as brother, sister, brother-in-law, or sister-in-law of head.

Other relative of head.—An "other relative" of the head is a person related to the family head by blood, marriage, or adoption, but not included specifically in another relationship category shown in the particular table.

Not related to head.—This classification comprises persons in the household who are not related to the household head by blood, marriage, or adoption; nonrelatives are classified as lodgers or resident employees.

A "lodger" is any household member not related to the household head except a resident employee. The classification includes roomers, boarders, partners, and relatives of such persons, and also foster children and wards. In tables 2 and 11 of this report, lodgers are classified into partners of household heads and other lodgers. A partner, as defined in this report, shares the household expenses with the head, whereas other lodgers generally pay a set fee for their accommodations.

A "resident employee" is an employee of the head of the household who usually resides in the housing unit with his employer; the term also includes the employee's relatives living in the same housing unit. Among the main types of resident employees are maids, hired farm hands, cooks, nurses, and companions.

Group Quarters

All persons not living in households are classified by the Bureau of the Census as living in group quarters. Persons living in group quarters are classified in this report as to type of group quarters.

INTRODUCTION—Continued

Institution (inmate).—Persons under care or custody in institutions at the time of enumeration are classified as "inmate of institution" regardless of their length of stay in that place and regardless of the number of people in that place. Institutions are a subcategory of group quarters and include homes, schools, hospitals, or wards for juveniles, for the physically handicapped, or for the mentally handicapped; hospitals for mental, tubercular, or chronic disease patients; homes for unwed mothers; nursing, convalescent and rest homes; homes for the aged and dependent; and correctional institutions.

Institution (staff).—This classification includes staff personnel residing on institutional grounds who provide care or custody for the inmates.

Rooming house.—In addition to residents in rooming houses and in living quarters with 5 or more persons not related to the head, this category includes the small number of persons temporarily residing in hotels, motels, Y's, communes, and residential clubs at the time of enumeration who had no permanent residence elsewhere.

Military barracks.—Military personnel living in barracks or on ships are included in this category. Residents of housing units on military bases are included with the population in households.

College dormitory.—As used here, this category includes college students in dormitories, in fraternity and sorority houses, and in rooming houses in which all occupants are college students.

Religious group quarters, not elsewhere classified.—This classification comprises principally group quarters for nuns teaching in parochial schools and for priests living in rectories; it also includes other convents and monasteries except those associated with a general hospital or an institution.

Workers' dormitory.—This classification includes persons in bunkhouses in migratory workers' camps, logging camps, and other labor camps.

Low-cost transient quarters.—As used here, this category includes persons in flophouses and missions.

Commercial ship.—This category includes crews of vessels except those occupied by military personnel.

General hospital or nurses' dormitory.—This category refers mainly to group quarters for nurses and other staff members. It excludes most patients. Patients under short-term care for surgical treatment, observation, or convalescence were included only if they had no usual place of residence elsewhere; other short-term patients were enumerated at their usual place of residence. Patients receiving certain specialized types of care on a relatively long-term basis, such as psychiatric treatment and treatment for chronic diseases, were enumerated as inmates of institutions.

Uses and Limitations of the Data

The statistics shown in this report may be used to study the living arrangements of persons in relation to a wide variety of social and economic characteristics of the households or families of which they are members. In using these statistics, it should be kept in mind that they refer to the population enumerated at its usual place of residence. For instance, a married woman whose husband is living away from home because of membership in the Armed Forces would have been assigned the marital status classification "married, spouse absent" because, according to the rules by which the population was assigned a usual place of residence, her husband would have been counted at his military installation rather than at his wife's home. Similarly, the count of parents of family heads includes only those parents whose usual residence was in the household of one of their children, the count of children includes those children whose usual residence was in the parental home, and so forth. The relationship classifications thus provide a measure of the practical, day-to-day living arrangements of the population and not of those other, perhaps more permanent, relationships that are not reflected in the composition of the household at the time of the enumeration.

Comparability with Other Data

The figures on relationship of family members to head of family shown in this report may be compared with the 1960 census and the 1950 census statistics on relationship of primary family members to head of primary family, and with the 1940 census statistics on relationship to head of household, for persons related to head by blood, marriage, or adoption.

The 1970 definition of a household differs from that used in the 1960 census only in the change in the definition of housing unit to require "complete kitchen facilities" in 1970, as compared with "cooking equipment" previously. The definitions for 1970 group quarters are basically the same as those for 1960 but are more specific.

Other 1970 census reports.—Other reports present data based on the complete count and on the 20-percent sample. The number of households and the total population in the United States according to the 20-percent sample are almost identical with the numbers according to the complete count, because the numbers in the sample were controlled to agree with those in the complete count (table 1). This control extended to other categories of household and family status, including three types of households (male head with own children under 18, male head without own children under 18, and female head) and group quarters. In general, the 20-percent sample data are reasonably close to the complete-count data when sampling variability is taken into account.

The figures from the 5-percent sample shown in this report tend to be in close agreement with those from the 20-percent sample shown in other reports.

Current Population Survey.—Table 1 also includes comparisons of figures from the March 1970 Current Population Survey (CPS) with those from the 1970 census 5-percent sample. The key figures in the CPS with regard to the number of households, family heads and wives, and primary individuals are in agreement with those in the 1970 census 5-percent sample, when account is taken of the sampling error associated with the estimates. Furthermore, when allowance is made for the difference between the date of the CPS and that of the census, and for the exclusion from the CPS of Armed Forces in military barracks (1,005,000 male members of the Armed Forces in 20-percent sample), the total population in the CPS, which was controlled to independent estimates, is quite close to that in the census.

In general, the number of persons in households is larger in the CPS than in the census. This difference is attributable, in part, to the fact that some college students (1,766,000 in 20-percent sample) were enumerated in the census in the community where they attended college, whereas in the CPS, single college students living away from home in college dormitories were enumerated at their parental homes.
